U. S. MARSHAL RESTRAINED FROM INTERFERING WITH MEETING

Temporary Injunction Granted Brotherhood of Electrical Workers—Move to Vacate Injunction So Far as It applies to Jewell—Joliet R. R. Invites Shopmen to Return

WASHINGTON, Sept. 9.—A temporary injunction restraining United States Marshal Snyder from interfering with the meeting of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, one of the striking rail shop crafts and from doing anything to prevent strike activities "in excess" of the Chicago restraining order was issued today by Justice Bailey in the supreme court of the District of Columbia.

The court denied the petition for a similar injunction against United States Attorney Gordon, but without prejudice to a renewal of the application after next Monday when the Chicago order expires by its own terms.

Science Had Turned Despair Into Hope as Rescue Crews Resume Task

Instrument Records No Gasses Indicating Presence of Single Dead Body

JACKSON, Cal., Sept. 9.—(By the Associated Press)—Science, through one of its uncanny subtle instruments, had turned despair into hope when crews of diggers resumed today their hectic task of reaching the spot walled in by rock and debris and flame, where 47 workers in the Argonaut gold mine have been imprisoned for 12 days.

A delicate instrument, it was explained, had been lowered into the fiery and gaseous shaft through which the men had gone. It had recorded no gasses indicating the presence of a single dead body. Moreover, it was reported to show that noxious gasses had not penetrated to the region where the men are entombed, but that the air in the lower levels was pure enough to sustain life.

SCHOOLS WILL OPEN MONDAY

Coming Year Bids Fair to Be Epochal in Local Educational Circles

Largest Enrollment This Year in History of Lowell Public Schools

More Than 2300 Pupils Will Be Cared for in the New High School

The Lowell public schools will open Monday with the largest enrollment in history. This is not such an unusual statement as might be supposed, for each year the registration bulks larger than ever before, and this year simply is maintaining the ratio of increase. Figures upon the registration at elementary schools are not available at this time for grammar masters have no way of knowing more than approximately the size of entering classes. Figures on the high school registration are available, however, and at the present time there is an enrollment of 2304, nearly 300 more than were registered before the school opened last year. The freshman class, numbering 750, is larger than any other that ever entered the portals of the school. In many ways the coming school year

MRS. HARDING, WHO IS CRITICALLY ILL, HAD "FAIRLY GOOD NIGHT"

Complications of Yesterday Were Less Threatening This Morning—Note of Optimism Sounded By Atty. Gen. Daugherty—Believes Patient's Pluck and Will Power Will Carry Her Safely Through Crisis

WASHINGTON, Sept. 9.—The condition of Mrs. Harding, wife of the president, critically ill at the White House, was reported at 9:30 a. m. today, to be "as favorable as can be expected at this time."

A bulletin issued by Brig. Gen. C. E. Sawyer, physician in attendance, said Mrs. Harding had a "fairly good night," and that complications of yesterday were "less threatening" this morning.

Dr. Sawyer's statement follows: "Mrs. Harding had a fairly good night. The complications of yesterday are less threatening this morning. On the whole, her condition is as favorable as can be expected at this time."

Note of Optimism
Attorney General Daugherty, who remained throughout the night at the White House because of the critical condition of Mrs. Harding, wife of the president, said on leaving there early today that she had passed a "more comfortable night than had been expected," and that he believed her pluck and will power would carry her safely through the crisis.

SWEETSER LEADS EVANS 3 UP AT END OF FIRST 18 HOLES

Metropolitan Titlist Shows Way to Veteran National Champion in Early Play—Evans Off in Approaching and Putting

THE COUNTRY CLUB, BROOKLINE, Sept. 9. (By the Associated Press)—A new head was pushing up in the gallery of golf champions today and an old one was being bowed when Jesso Sweetser, metropolitan titlist led "Chick" Evans, twice national champion, 3 up at the end of the first 18 holes of their final match at 36 holes for the national amateur championship. Sweetser was good today, but not as good as yesterday. Evans was off in approaching and putting.

Wonderful Progress by Sweetser
THE COUNTRY CLUB, BROOKLINE, Sept. 9.—Jesso Sweetser, the young New Yorker, met Chick Evans of Chicago today in the final match on the Country club course for the national amateur golf championship. It was Sweetser's debut in play for the national title, which Evans has held twice. Sweetser, winner of the colors of the Swaney club of New York and the blue of Yale by virtue of his membership in the 1920 Eli golf team, is the first Metropolitan amateur to threaten the national crown within the last five years and the first finalist in seven years.

He captured the intercollegiate title in 1920 and the Metropolitan crown this year. Failing to qualify in his first national attempt in 1919 and being eliminated in early round two years ago, he has made wonderful progress in the last year.

Evans is 12 years his opponent's senior and is a veteran of 12 years' of tournament play. This year he demonstrated in remarkable fashion that he is far from the retiring age by clinching the western honors.

This hitch in the proceedings was discovered today, when it was found that the street sprinkling assessment, amounting to upwards of $25,000 has not yet been passed by the city council. ## Adventures of the Twins

TINGLING ON TRAIL OF TWINS

"DID YOU SEE A LITTLE BOY AND GIRL?"

Flap-Doodle, the purple fairy, who had stolen the Fairy Queen's wand, had changed Nancy and Nick into white rabbits before he flew away. The Fairy Queen, being sure that something was wrong, sent all her helpers to hunt for the lost twins. Mr. Tingaling went first. He knew all the nooks and corners and crooks and crannies of Whispering Forest and Bright Meadowland and Old Orchard. Kind, fat Tingaling, who, by the way, was the fairy landlord who collected all the rents from the wood folk, looked everywhere. He looked up and down and sideways and crossways and under things and over things, in hollow logs, down hollow stumps, oh, just everywhere. And he asked and asked and asked.

"Did you see a little boy and girl with golden hair and blue eyes anywhere about?" he asked old Mr. Mud Turtle.

"No," said Mr. Mud Turtle. "Haven't seen any strangers around these parts today but two white rabbits."

Mr. Tingaling asked Willie Tood next. "No, no," replied Willie. "The only new folks I saw around were two white rabbits. Must be relations of Cattle Cotton-tails."

And everybody Mr. Tingaling asked said the same thing.

"Well, I declare!" remarked Tingaling, frowning himself with his hat. "These must be important rabbits. If they are strangers perhaps they have come a distance and have seen the twins. I'll hunt them up and ask them."

DISCUSS PLANS FOR HIGH SCHOOL OPENING

A meeting of all high school teachers was held yesterday afternoon in the new high school for the purpose of discussing arrangements for the opening day of school next Monday. Headmaster Henry H. Harris addressed the teachers and outlined the following routine which will be carried out with the resumption of scholastic activities for the coming year:

Pupils will assemble first year pupils in the Frank P. Coburn hall, upper class pupils in the Cyrus W. Irish Auditorium; sophomores in the balcony and juniors, seniors and post-graduates on the main floor. The headmaster will take charge of the Auditorium meeting and the sub-master of the freshmen gathering in the hall.

An explanation of the plan of the building, the general arrangement of pupils, lockers, lunch room, hall schedule, etc., will be given; then the room assignments of pupils will be read and pupils sent to their rooms where they will be assigned seats by the home room teacher. Freshmen will be assigned lockers in the dressing room and upperclassmen will deposit twenty-five cents and receive a locker key from their home room teacher. The teacher will record the pupil's name on the key envelope and put the twenty-five cents there. Pupils will be sent at once to the locker room to put their keys away and return as quickly as possible to their seats. Pupils not prepared to pay for their keys will put their keys in their desks. No keys are to be given out without the deposit. Sufficient time will be allowed to attend to this matter.

First year pupils will be seated in the old part; upper class pupils in the new. So far as possible, sophomores will be on the third floor, juniors on the second, and seniors and post-graduates on the first. As the building is planned, this division of the girls are placed on the lady farcom side of the building, where are the girls' gymnasium, locker room and shower bath, the cooking and clothing laboratories. Girls will be expected to enter and leave by the entrance on the park. The rooms and

SAYS HER NAME USED WITHOUT AUTHORITY

Claiming and asserting that her name has been appended to political documents circulated in the interests of the campaign of George Stanley Harvey for district attorney without her knowledge or consent, Miss May B. Lavallo of 77 Gershom avenue, today soundly rebuffed the act and branded it "contemptible politics."

Letters addressed to French speaking citizens of this city, particularly women and asking not only support for Mr. Harvey's candidacy "as a personal favor," but also urging solicitation among friends and bearing Miss Lavallo's name as the sender, have been brought to her attention.

"My name has been used without authority or my consent," said Miss Lavallo, "and when a woman visited me and asked permission to use my name in such a manner, I told her not to use it under any circumstances."

Quarter Century Ago

The students of the Normal school will be interested to know that it opened its doors for the first time in October of 1897 as indicated by the following item from the old Sun:

"The opening of the Normal school is awaited with interest, not only by the prospective pupils, but hundreds of people in this city, who look to the opening of the school as an important move in educational circles. Just at present, the question that interests the public most is the time of opening. Principal Coburn states, the state board has arranged to open the school for students by October 1."

Frank F. Coburn was the first principal and after him came Cyrus V. Duggan, on whose tenure John J. Mahoney was elected. Mr. Mahoney resigned to accept a professorship at Harvard and Mr. Clarence Weed, the present incumbent, was elected.

The state highway from Lowell to Lawrence is familiar to many residents of Lowell but not so many are aware that it was 25 years ago that the road was started from Lowell to Lawrence, when the lines of the Lowell-Lawrence and Lawrence-Lowell roads were laid out. The following from the old Sun refers to one of the first steps for constructing the state highway from Lowell to Lawrence:

"There was an important hearing at the courthouse yesterday on the proposed state highway through Lowell. It was an adjourned hearing, and when the county commissioners were ready to hear the question argued, there were but few people assembled in the room."

"A very pretty wedding was that of Mr. John Markham, a popular employee of the Cannon, and Miss Catherine Honan, a charming daughter of old world three. The marriage ceremony took place at St. Peter's parochial residence, Rev. Fr. Roan officiating the happy couple."

FOR THOSE WHO HAVE THIN BLOOD

Many Symptoms Not Always Associated With Anemia Disappear When Blood Is Built Up

The familiar symptoms of anemia, or thin blood, are pallor of the face and a sense of weakness often described as a tired feeling.

Other symptoms of anemia are loss of appetite, indigestion, sleeplessness, shortness of breath after slight effort and extreme nervousness. If unchecked, anemia causes loss of weight, vigor and ambition.

If you have any or all of these symptoms begin treatment now with a non-alcoholic tonic which will make the blood rich and plentiful, thereby giving it the food part of the body will respond to the treatment as was evident in the case of Mrs. Mary Scanlan, who lives at No. 165 Brooks street, East Boston, Mass.

"My trouble began shortly after the birth of my daughter," relates Mrs. Scanlan. "I was weak and just had to be carried in my bed. Within two weeks I was able to get up, but I was still suffering from severe nervous headache, which seemed like hot, darting flashes across my head. My appetite was poor and when I forced myself to eat I suffered from indigestion. It seemed as though there was a weight on my stomach."

"I read about a case similar to mine being benefited by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills so I got a box. Within two weeks I was convinced that the pills were helping me. My appetite improved almost at once. Slowly I gained strength. My complexion improved and the headaches became less frequent and severe and finally disappeared entirely. I am not any longer a sufferer from anemia. I know they are a good tonic."

Your own druggist can sell you a box containing two weeks' treatment with Williams' Pink Pills for 60 cents. Your blood is thin start this treatment today. Write to the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Schenectady, N. Y., for booklet, "Building Up the Blood," which cost you nothing.—Adv.

League to Consider Asia Minor Situation

GENEVA, Sept. 9. (By the Associated Press.)—On the floor of the assembly of the League of Nations today before the opening a great deal of speculation was prevalent as to whether the league was not likely soon to have to undertake the protection of the minority population of Asia Minor, in view of the present military situation there. It was pointed out it was impossible for the league to impose any decision in this connection and that it would be necessary, in any event, for the powers to furnish whatever force was required. The league, however, stands ready to use its moral influence when the time comes, it was generally declared.

WARE MILLS TO REOPEN MONDAY

WARE, Sept. 9.—George E. Tucker, agent for the Otis company mills, last night announced that the plant will be reopened Monday morning, September 11, with wages at the rate prevailing prior to February 13. The mills were closed on March 8, following a strike of 100 weavers and about 20 yard men. The shutdown threw approximately 1700 employees out of work.

The loss of wages during the closed period has been approximately $25,000 weekly.

On August 21, the mills were reopened, but after eight days of discontent and failure to obtain sufficient help, the gates were again closed.

Two wage cuts have been put into effect since last fall, the first 22 1/2 percent and the last, 20 percent, announced February 13. The new wage rate will be 80 percent of the rate in effect when the mills were closed.

No notices have yet been posted, but the overseers have been instructed to communicate with out of town employees. Many families have left town since the strike.

Decision to proceed with the hearing on the date originally set was reached after a conference yesterday between United States Attorney Gordon and counsel for the union at which a postponement was considered.

58 THUS FAR INDICTED IN HERRIN MASSACRE

MARION, Ill., Sept. 9.—(By the Associated Press.)—The Herrin massacre special grand jury late yesterday afternoon returned 14 bills which included one bill of 43 indictments for rioting and another bill of the same 43 men for conspiracy to kill. The jury then recessed until Monday morning, Sept. 18.

With four additional men in jail here yesterday charged with murder, Sheriff Melvin Thaxton and his special deputies were out searching for the rest of the 38 indicted yesterday in the true bills returned in the grand jury's partial report on the Herrin mine war.

With Otis Clark of Goresville, the first man indicted and arrested, the four new prisoners are Leva Mann, miner of Herrin; Chas. Rogers, miner of Herrin; Philip Fontanetta, miner of Marion; and James Brown, a negro deputy sheriff of Coip, a small mining settlement northwest of Herrin.

The first indictment made known yesterday charged six men with the killing of Howard Hoffman of Huntington, Ind., and the employees of the Lester strip mine, who escaped the massacre at the barbed wire to the woods, but who was overtaken and brought back to the cemetery, where five were shot down. Leva Mann is in this group.

Thirty-seven were made co-defendants in the third bill charging them with murder in connection with the death of John Shoemaker of Charleston, Ill. Rogers, Fontanetta and Brown are named in the bill.

Shoemaker was a son of Mayor Shoemaker of Charleston, Ill., and the father of three small children. He was a brother-in-law of W. J. Lester, owner of the ill-fated strip mine, and was acting as assistant superintendent at the time of the massacre.

More indictments will be issued, it is understood, for larceny and perjury. Following the massacre at the strip mine, much of the equipment was stolen and some of the stolen equipment has been recovered.

Indictments for perjury, it was said, will be based on the testimony of some witnesses given before the grand jury, United States Attorney General C. W. Middlekauff made known Thursday.

Indictments for perjury, it was said, will be based on the testimony of some witnesses given before the grand jury, United States Attorney General C. W. Middlekauff made known Thursday.

COULD NOT TURN IN BED

Operation Avoided by Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Dayton, Ohio.—"I had such pains that I had to be turned in every time I wished to move. They said an operation was necessary. My mother would keep saying: 'Why don't you take Pinkham's, Henrietta?' and I'd say, 'Oh, mamma, it won't help me, I've tried too much.' One day she said, 'Let me get you one bottle of each kind. You won't be out very much if I don't know if you will believe me or not, but I only took two bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and one of Lydia E. Pinkham's Blood Medicine when I began to get relief and I am regular ever since without a pain or a headache."

When I lie down I can get up without help and without pain. I can't begin to tell you how I feel and look. I have begun to gain in weight and look more like I ought to. I think every day of ways I have been helped. Any one who does not believe me can write to me and I will tell them what shape I was in. I am ready to do anything I can to help your medicine."—Mrs. HENRIETTA MILLER, 127 Sprague St., Dayton, Ohio.

Europe Racing for Air Supremacy

—French in Lead, Fear Germans

HOW U. S. COMPARES

America's position in aviation is far below other nations in a figure way, but much higher commercially. Comparative figures in military aviation—air defense being gauged by the number of new machines—are given by Brig. Gen. William Mitchell, assistant chief of air service:

|               | In Service | Reserve | Building |
|---------------|------------|---------|----------|
| United States | 300        | 300     | 300      |
| Great Britain | 600        | 3000    | 1000     |
| France        | 2000       | 2000    | 2000     |

Mitchell adds that Italy has 500 machines now building, and Japan has 1000.

Commercial aviation figures just issued by the Aeronautical Chamber of Commerce of America are compared here with commercial records abroad:

|               | Flights | Mileage   | Pas- sengers | Tons freight |
|---------------|---------|-----------|--------------|--------------|
| United States | 130,736 | 2,907,245 | 122,512      | 62           |
| France        | 6,515   | 1,460,000 | 10,305       | 175          |
| Great Britain | 5,700   | 173,000   | 10,000       | 37           |
| Germany       |         | 1,033,700 | 6,820        | 34           |

Figures for the United States and France are for 1921, for Great Britain six months, and Germany seven months.

BY MILTON BRONNER
LONDON, Sept. 9.—Supremacy in the air is the goal European nations are racing for. France stands easily first, with England a poor second, and Germany a great question mark.

British engineers are trying to offset French numerical superiority, while the best German brains are at work not only inventing new devices but evading the restriction put upon their air future by the allies.

These developments are causing the most concern—especially to the French.

Germany's recent amazing strides in perfecting gliders, which they claim may change the entire future of air history; while a German glider remained up more than two hours, the best the French could do was five minutes.

The reported manufacture in a neighboring country under German supervision of the powerful all-metal glider monoplane known as the Zeppelin-Staaken.

Stricken by her fears of possible German aggression in the future and determined to preserve her military domination on the continent, France has the largest and best trained military air service in the world. Laurent Binyne, French air minister, claims his country stands first both in military and commercial aviation.

French aircraft factories, encouraged by the government, are turning out 150 machines a month. France has 126 squadrons of airplanes in her offensive and defensive forces and by the end of next year proposes to have 220 squadrons, or nearly 2000 ready for active duty. In addition there are 508 planes in civilian work capable of being used for military purposes.

Commercial air travel is possible between Paris and London, Brussels, Strasbourg, Amsterdam, Prague, Warsaw, Vienna, Budapest, Latharna and Marseilles between southern France and Morocco, between Toulouse and Barcelona, and a line is in preparation between Paris and Constantinople.

England is bestirring herself as the result of a scare in parliament, where it was authoritatively stated that the total active British military force was 32 1/2 squadrons, of which 20 were scattered through Egypt, Palestine, Mesopotamia and India. Parliament was startled by the admission that only 57 British planes certified as airworthy are in civil aviation and only 53 of them of value for military purposes.

Commercial lines are mainly between London and Paris and Brussels. Premier Lloyd George has announced that a force of 600 military machines is provided for home defense at an annual cost of $16,000,000. The British are experimenting with several new devices, building a super flying boat, preparing a bombing machine of enormous horsepower, constructing six all-metal machines, and planning a flying repair ship.

With German military airplanes destroyed and commercial aircraft construction restricted, Germany complains that her air industry has been throttled. Nevertheless she has work orders with 225 machines, 100 of which are new ex-military machines. With them they have maintained air service all over Germany and also to Holland and the city of Riga in Russia.

Signs of wariness are: Deranged stomach, swollen upper lip, sour stomach, offensive breath, hard and full stomach with occasional gripings and pains, pale face of leaden tint, eyes heavy and dull, twitching eyelids, itching of the nose, short, dry cough, grinding of the teeth, Hutto red points sticking out on tongue, starting during sleep with troublesome dreams, slow fever. If your child shows any of these symptoms, start giving Dr. Tru's Elixir at once. 40c—60c—$1.20.—Adv.

ANOTHER CIVIL WAR

Stife Torn China Faces Another Reversal in Struggle for Democratic Expression

PEKING, Sept. 8.—(By the Associated Press.)—Stife Torn China faces another reversal in its struggle for democratic expression. The country is on the verge of another change in government which threatens to give the militarists complete control, according to members of President Li Yuan-Hung's cabinet.

President Li fears that the militarists are preparing to embroil China in another civil war, with a view to preventing abolition of the Tschun system, a move to which the old statement demanded acquiescence before he accepted the presidency.

He now contends that unless civil authority dominates, the country will experience a backslide of many years in its desire to become a progressive nation.

Military pressure is being exerted upon Peking both from the north, where Chang Tso-Lin, former bandit chief, is now military dictator, and from the south, where Chen Chiang-ling's troops recently are giving evidence of lawlessness.

The failure of parliament to function is attributed to some quarters to the Cantonese members who are acting in behalf of Sun Yat Sen, first president of China and deposed leader of the southern China government. Dr. Sun, who has remained at Shanghai since his flight from Canton, is charged with instigating riots in parliament sessions.

REPUBLICAN FIGHTS

Not since the days of Mark Hanna and the torchlight parades has there been a political campaign in this state so full of vigor and strenuousness as has been that which will close with the polls in the primaries next Tuesday.

The fight for the nomination for governor between the present incumbent and Attorney General Allen has been spectacular in many respects, with the governor in control of the situation so far as can be judged by a democratic viewing the process. Allen wants an opportunity to clean out the scheming politicians who have camped at the state house and are corrupting the source of government. The charge is amusingly sure and it would seem that if any such den of corruptionists existed, and the attorney general should know whereof he speaks, he should have used his authority to clean them out. If Governor Cox permitted such conditions, he should be deposed, and if Attorney General Allen has neglected his duty to enter politics, then he also should be retired.

It seems, therefore, that we should have a change of governor and also an attorney general who as such will do his duty rather than coming to the front and telling the people that he will not move against the political crooks unless he is elected governor. There is another rift in the republican ranks in reference to the choice of United States senators. Mr. Lodge is opposed by Hon. Joseph Walker, who voices the opinion of many republicans in stating that Senator Lodge cannot be elected if any capable democrat be nominated against him. Even the national leaders of the republican party, realizing the revolution of feeling against their do-nothing policy, have expressed grave fears that Sen. Lodge be defeated for the nomination. They have in mind what happened recently to other veterans of the Old Guard and feel that Lodge will have to suffer for the failure of the administration in which he has been the most prominent political leader but never a leader in constructive statesmanship.

He may get the nomination, but if the democrats pick the right candidate next Tuesday they will have an excellent opportunity to defeat Mr. Lodge at the polls in November.

What is the chief animus of the opposition to Lodge? Not that he is a republican, but that he works for the upbuilding of his party rather than for the economic and industrial prosperity of the country. Never has the nation so sorely needed patriotic men of business capacity as the United States senate at the present hour. The people realize the fact and have already set about the work of drafting new blood.

Mr. Lodge is a good American and patriot, but during his 35 years in congress 22 of which he has served in the senate, he has devoted his talents chiefly to politics and literature rather than to promoting the business interests of Massachusetts and New England. Had he devoted his brilliant talents to real statesmanship rather than to machine politics, he could have had any office in the gift of the American people, whereas now there is a demand for his retirement.

His endorsement of the outrageous tariff on scoured wool which was explained in these columns yesterday in one of the chief charges against him in the present campaign, apart from the general failure of the administration at Washington.

If Senator Lodge should be defeated the national leaders would foresee a general crash in which the whole republican temple would collapse like a house of cards and the party be driven from office just as soon as the constitution will permit.

VOTE RIGHT

Now that the campaign is drawing to a close the democrats of Lowell should select with extreme care the candidates for whom they are to vote at the primaries to be held next Tuesday. A vote cast for an unfit or incompetent candidate will stand on the side of inefficient government; and those who vote for such candidates are usually the ones most ready to complain if things go amiss when the new officials enter upon their duties and prove to be misfits or to be so unscrupulous as to barter their votes for bribes and be guided only by the principles of "how much there is in it" in acting upon public questions.

The question of good government comes down eventually to one of personal responsibility. Each voter is responsible for the use he makes of the franchise. We have here no kings or monarchs. The sovereignty rests with the people and the citizen who exercises his rights at the polls is thereby wielding a part of the sovereign power by which this nation is ruled. To prostitute that power and privilege to corrupt ends is treason to the country even though it be transacted behind closed doors away from public gaze and even free from suspicion.

The primary law is blamed for unsatisfactory results but too often it is the electorate, and not the law, that is at fault.

The man or woman who votes for the best man according to his or her judgment, votes right. It is important, however, to find out the real character and qualifications of every candidate before making a choice.

THE RAILROAD INFUNCTION

Much interest is manifested in the outcome of the hearing on the injunction obtained by the attorney-general against the railroad strikers. It will be held Monday and then the country will have an opportunity to learn the precise powers of the attorney-general under this drastic temporary injunction. The labor officials claim that the injunction in certain features of its scope is a violation of the Clayton act, the aim or purpose of which is to prevent so-called government by injunction. The whole controversy involves questions of constitutional law that only the highest court in the land can fully and finally determine.

Apart from the legal aspects of the injunction, it must be said that it has not, so far as can be judged, accomplished any good purpose. It may place certain union officials at a disadvantage and perhaps leave them liable for prosecution; but thus far there has been no move on the part of the government to restrain them in their public utterances or to prevent the strikers from holding meetings and carrying on in all respects same as before the injunction was issued. The purpose of the injunction, of course, was to prevent any interference with the operation of the railroads that would cripple the service or prove a source of danger to life and property. The strikers have repudiated the charge that they or any of their members have been guilty of any act of violence and in support of this claim they point to the fact that any violence against railroad trains would menace the lives of their brothers, the railroad trainmen.

SEASONAL SELLING BANNED

The time-honored system of "seasonal selling" of boots and shoes in the spring and fall is to be abandoned by most of the large shoe manufacturing establishments in Brockton. We understand that the important shoe industries of other large New England cities, will follow the Brockton idea, which has many good features considering the condition of trade today and the innovations being rapidly made in the methods of producing and selling footwear.

Whether the radical departure from the custom of distribution thus adopted by the shoe company controlled by former Governor William L. Douglas will work out the way the Douglas people expect remains to be seen.

A new retail reserve system is being arranged, to go into effect this month. Under the new Brockton scheme, a reserve stock of a million dollars' worth of the latest styles will be held ready by the Douglas concern for instant shipment. The aim is to enable the retailers to turn their capital over quickly, thereby bracing up profits. The reaction upon the company is expected to be continuous operation of its factories.

SEEN AND HEARD

Nursing a grouch makes it grow. All polished men don't shine. This may be an awful country, but in Paris men wear ear-rings. "Turks, Take Back-Sheer"—headline. Some people drink anything. What pleases the owner of an orchard like school opening? To the stray hat, "So long, old top. See you next spring."

TWO SPLENDID BUILDINGS

Lowell is on the eve of two great events in her history, one the opening of the new high school, and the other the dedication of the Memorial Auditorium. Both these buildings are a credit to the city and will prove a great source of educational and social uplift and civic pride for the generations to come. It may be that a great many of our citizens do not fully appreciate what it will mean to this and future generations to have two such magnificent buildings devoted to their education, political and social needs. It will be a great step forward for Lowell and her people.

RUSSIANS EXECUTED

The London Times "hears from Riga" that the Cheka, Bolshevik punitive secret society, executed 1,766,113 people before it went out of existence last February.

Do you believe it? The figure is improbably large, for it is doubtful if all Bolsheviks combined could muster enough work-spirit to bury that many political victims. Most news from Russia has to be discounted 90 per cent. Propagandists keep very busy, on both sides, otherwise they'd be out of jobs.

THE BONUS BILL

Now that the bonus bill goes to the president, there is great curiosity as to what his action will be in reference to this measure. If he keeps to his oft-stated attitude he will veto the bill and so far as appears from the vote in the senate, the supporters of the measure will not be able to muster enough votes to carry it over the presidential veto. To override the veto would be 47, but the vote on the bill was but 47 to 22, so that unless a number of senators who voted against the bill should change their attitude it cannot be carried over the veto.

ARTIFICIAL SILK

Do you wear silk? Or do you just think it is? The American output of artificial silk, mostly from the cellulose of wood pulp, now exceeds 15,000,000 pounds a year. It is a good product, wears like iron, it properly made. The marvelous little invention, by which a machine duplicates the delicate work of the silkworm, may upset the whole economic system of Japan before many years. Everything in life is changing constantly these days.

GREECE

The whole civilized world must sympathize with Greece in the bitter defeats she has suffered at the hands of Turkey, with or without the aid of some other European powers. This is the time when Greece needs a statesman even more than a military genius to guide her destinies through this troublous period.

GEN. EDWARDS ACCEPTS To Take Command of the Massachusetts National Guard

BOSTON, Sept. 9.—Gov. Cox late yesterday made public a letter from Maj. Gen. Clarence E. Edwards, commander of the First corps area and former leader of the 28th (Aviation) division, accepting the executive's appointment as major general in the Massachusetts National Guard effective upon his retirement from the regular army later in the year.

"You request me to accept the commission of major general in the service of the commonwealth upon my retirement from the regular army," the general wrote, "and to assume the command of the National Guard of Massachusetts, in order that it may be developed to the highest state of efficiency at the minimum of time and at a minimum of expense."

"For some time Maj. Edwards and I have been looking forward to a real vacation upon my retirement and after 12 years of service with the colors. Apparently the vacation must be postponed for the people of Massachusetts have been and are to be far more than their service of the war that you extend leave me no alternative."

"I accept your tender, effective upon my retirement, later in the year, duly appreciative of the honor involved and ready to give the best that is in me to the new command until the task you have set me is complete."

In assuming Gen. Edwards of his satisfaction in learning of the acceptance, Gov. Cox replied:

"The citizens of Massachusetts will, I am sure, appreciate the fine spirit which Maj. Edwards as well as yourself have shown in changing your anticipated plans for a vacation and a call to their service of the state that you extend leave me no alternative."

Adj. Gen. Jesse F. Stevens had previously expressed the opinion that the regulations of the National Guard would not permit of Maj. Gen. Edwards being appointed to office in the Massachusetts organization on account of age limitation.

THE MAN ABOUT TOWN

At last the houses on First street have been sold to prepare the way for the construction of additional parking space in that area. The proposed park will greatly improve the appearance of the locality, and as it is, at the very entrance to the city from the Lawrence boulevard. It should serve to create a very favorable impression in the minds of visitors who come to our city by that route for the first time. Lowell already has two beautiful "entrances" in Fort Hill and the boulevard, and with the addition of the Varnum park extension and the contemplated repairs to Main street, the city should be well fortified with pleasing approaches.

According to Supt. John W. Kernan of the park department, the construction work on the improvement of the First street project will begin as soon as the buildings are removed. The superintendent also states that Centralville will probably have a stadium in the fall when the highway work is completed. It is his opinion that tennis courts, similar to those at Shedd park, will also be laid in there. If present plans materialize, Centralville will gain much by the new venture.

"You are now entering (name of town) and we hope that your stay among us will be most pleasant. We cordially greet you and extend you a most hearty welcome."

This is one of the signs that greets you as you enter some of the towns of Maine and as you leave the town you are confronted with another sign that reads something like this: "You are now leaving (name of town) and we hope that your stay in our midst has been most pleasant and that you now have a good impression of our town. Farewell and come again."

Signs of this sort are very common in the Pine Tree state, so that automobile tourists keep posted as to their whereabouts. They probably know at all times where they are without asking questions. Another thing I noticed during a recent automobile trip through Maine was the signs pertaining to speed limit. Here in Massachusetts the speed is generally limited to 15 miles an hour but in most of the towns in Maine the signs inform you that you can go along at 25 miles an hour, but not any faster and you are warned to obey the law. I thought such a high speed limit would be a source of invitation for automobilists to go faster, but such is not the case, for I found that there is very little speeding on the highways of Maine. It seems that every one is contented to go along at 25 miles an hour. Perhaps if we increased our speed limit from 15 to 25 miles an hour on open roads, the change might have a good effect upon the speed maniacs. There are few macadamized roads in the state of Maine, but the gravel roads, which are in poor condition, are in such instances in better condition than the state highways of this commonwealth.

One million dollars a day is what ice costs the American people. The national ice bill for 70 years is as big as the present national debt. Paying for our ice is like paying for a national economic earthquake. Why worry, then, about the national debt? With Americans using a billion dollars worth of ice every three years, a man with a penchant for statistics dignify this interesting fact: The first artificial ice was not made until the last year of the civil war. As late as 1859 there were only 37 ice factories in the whole country. Now the ice plants number into the thousands and turn out over 50,000,000 tons of ice a year. Thousands of conveniences like ice, we take for granted and do not appreciate our comforts as compared with our ancestors. However, while we have more conveniences, we also have more discomforts.

BAKED PEARS WITH RICE

By BERTHA SHAPLEIGH
Of Columbia University

12 pears, inch piece of cinnamon, 2 cups milk, 1/2 cup rice, 1 egg, 2 tablespoons sugar, 1/4 teaspoon salt, 2 cups sugar, 1 cup water.

Pears, cut in halves, and remove the seeds from the pears. Make a slant by cooking sugar, water and cinnamon together for five minutes. In this sirup cook the pears, a few at a time, until they are soft but not mushy. Cook rice in milk for one hour—add sugar, salt and egg and cook five minutes. Turn into a mold and chill. Turn onto a serving dish, surround with pears and sirup.

Hard winter pears, or the early fall pears, or seckel pears, are all good cooked in this way.

Sometimes a little preserved ginger instead of the cinnamon is used.

WILL STUDY FOR THE PRIESTHOOD

William Joseph Niland, aged 15, son of Mrs. Thomas Lancaster of 101 Chapel street and a graduate of St. Peter's parochial school, will leave Monday for the Epiphany college in Baltimore, Md., where he will study for the priesthood.

He was tendered a farewell party at his home last evening and was presented a gold fountain pen and a purse of $50, the latter gift being from his grandmother, Mrs. Maria Holmes. There were about 50 present and all enjoyed a pleasant evening. Entertainment numbers were given and a buffet luncheon was served.

Berton Braley's Daily Poem MAN THE MASTER

He has harnessed the earth and its forces,
He has laughed at the might of the sea,
He has charted the stars in their courses.
He has flown like a bird, high and free;
His mind knows no sure limitation,
It measures the depths and the heights,
He's made himself Lord of Creation,
High Priest of its marvelous rites.

He has built vast structures of wonder
And filled them with beautiful art,
He has made him great anon that thunder,
And music that touches the heart;
The desert has bloomed at his order,
The wild has obeyed his command,
From ultimate border to border,
All nature lies under his hand.

He has tunneled deep under the rivers
And stricken the mountains in twain,
The star sprinkled firmament quivers
With waves that are made by his brain;
So he dominates earth and its splendors
But somehow, in spite of all that,
He will put on fancy suspenders,
Stiff collar, and hard derby hat!

Spooning and Gambling in Cemetery

WASHINGTON, Sept. 9.—Public spooning has reached the limit when the spooners pick out Arlington cemetery for their activities, army officers have decided. Upon protest of indignant residents adjacent to the cemetery, raids have been instituted to clear the roads around Arlington of midnight parties. Robert Lye, superintendent of the cemetery, said today that "tin horn gamblers" had even spread their blankets on the cemetery walls, and that scores of automobiles parked besides the enclosure every night within a stone's throw of the graves of American soldiers. They will be kept moving hereafter, he said.

The governor arrived at the police station after his daughter and the young woman had departed. The young man did not leave the police station until later. # "Hungry Hearts," Beatitude of the Screen

ROSE ROSANOVA HELEN FERGUSON ABE BUDIN

BY JAMES W. DEAN
NEW YORK, Sept. 9.—"Hungry Hearts" is a beatitude of the screen that reaches the gospel of beauty. Like "The Jack Knife Man" it possesses no dramatic punch, yet it holds the attention through the very intimate glimpse it gives into the lives of its characters.

As the film unfolds its story you come to believe that you are actually peeping into the hearts and impulses of the immigrant family that came from Russia in the quest of beauty. You come to understand why the tenement immigrant counts his pennies and labors long hours—not to become wealthy so much as to be able to acquire the beautiful things of life to satisfy the longing of a heart from which beauty has been shut off by poverty and oppression.

You come to understand that there is oppression in America, too, and those that weigh down upon the new immigrant often were immigrants themselves.

There is a deep sincerity in this picture. It could not be otherwise, for "Hungry Hearts" was written by Anna Yezierska, herself an immigrant Russian who labored in a sweatshop and worked at menial tasks to gain an education from which she could survey the beautiful things of life. Only a few years ago she was refused a job as a secretary in a New York hotel because of her appearance.

Anna Yezierska knows her people better than anyone else knows them because she was herself one of them. E. Mason Hopper has told her story on the screen with rare fidelity. "Hungry Hearts" is not so dramatic as "Humoresque" but it is a higher form of cinematographic expression than the latter picture. Rose Rosanova has the mother role in "Hungry Hearts." She is a different type than Vera Gordon who became famous for her role in "Humoresque." Anna Rosanova's picture does not give her such a sympathetic role as was Miss Gordon's, but if you were to visit the ghetto of any large city you would see more women like that presented by the former than that presented by the latter. Her past few pictures have proven Anna Rosanova one of the really big character actresses of the day.

No fault will be found with the acting of Abe Budin, who plays the part of a butcher in "Hungry Hearts." He is working as a butcher when the casting director employed him for the movie. He made enough in that part to buy a small store for himself.

Helen Ferguson, who is remarkably like Babe Daniels, also does good work in "Hungry Hearts." She was willing to look the part of a greenhorn, not relying entirely on her make-up to create the character.

James A. Fitzpatrick, who is filming the "Great English Authors," can't decide whether to include John Milton in the list. That, because the abstract quality is emphasized in Milton's works, while the dramatic quality is rare.

It seems that if a painting can be utilized as the theme of a motion picture, enough action could be found in a poem for a picture. The picture of Milton's idea of paradise and hell would be at least more interesting than some of our so-called dramatic pictures.

To see it, although the comedy isn't written in the vein of a sermon, is worth the price. Helen Ferguson is young, and because they are young they can dance some of the old times to a standard. That the picture was written by a young man is not surprising. They are now in the adult class. Really, their work stands out as one of the brightest of spots of the budding film season.

Jones and Jones are blackface comedians, who show us the levee type of negro in his palmy days. They mean good comedy, plantation melodies and some wonderful dancing. The Autumn trio give whistling, minstrelsy and comedy in an artistic manner. Zema and Smith the flying minstrels, do there. Then there is Lynn, Dilson & Co. in "The Love Egg," and Claire O'Donnell and Eddie Black and R. W. Snow and Narine, Bertram and complete the program.

For this coming week at the theatre Grace Hayes will be the top line attraction. It is said of her that she can stand still, do nothing and attract attention. That elusive something which for want of a better name we call "personality" is the thing which this wholly charming singing actress possesses. And she has it in good measure. Of course she doesn't seem still. Nothing of the sort. She does things and does them in a manner which will evoke the heartbeat of applause. She has first on the vaudeville horizon within comparatively short time, and is now a real headliner.

"Good Medicine" is the unusual title of an unusual comedy which Howard Smith and Mildred Parker will present during the week. In reality it doesn't have a thing to do with an M.D. Rather it concerns domestic life, and, above all, good cooking. There is a moral to it, if one chooses.

THEY WAITED FOR HOURS AT LOEW'S STATE THEATRE, BOSTON, TO SEE THIS PICTURE

REMEMBER NO ADVANCE IN OUR PRICES

In the great comedy drama of the west, "His Back Against the Wall," for the last three days of the week, starting with matinee on Thursday will be Zane Grey's big story, "When Romance Hides," an adaptation from the same author's popular novel, "Wildfire." The other feature will be a Dashiell Hammett production, "The Great Flower," with Helene Chadwick and an all-star cast assisting.

Little need be said of the Sunday program. It includes high-grade vaudeville with the Shuffles Along Jazzy band featuring an entire change of pictures.

In "Fascination," Mae Murray turns to Spain for her background. As the daughter of a Spanish father and an American mother, Miss Murray reflects all of the fire and temperament of the former and the charm and balance of the latter. The star does some wonderful dramatic work and again displays her exceptional talent as an interpretive dancer. As Dolores De Lisa, a high-strung girl who is revolting against the strict chaperonage of her maiden aunt, and who slips away one night for adventure's sake and attends a bull fight, she is surely amusing. When she meets the torero who falls under his spell, and is so impressed with what she sees and hears that the very next night she takes herself to a cabaret and there in the guise of a dancer performs for the entertainment of the guests—all her personal friends who fail to recognize her in her urbane and somewhat scanty dance attire. The reflection of her emotions during the bull fight, indicated during the dance is wonderfully fascinating. Besides being an elaborate and highly artistic screen creation, it has all of the other elements that go in making a truly enthralling photoplay. There is no doubt that "Fascination" is a good love romance and scenic effects that dazzle.

Raymond Hatten and Virginia Valli are starred in the new Goldwyn play, "His Back Against the Wall." It tells the story of a coward who forces a hero to fight him, and the hero, who has been known as "Shot up," a bully of the town, how he lives up to the reputation he has inadvertently made, and the hero of his order is admirably shown by Hatten. Miss Valli also scores well in the part opposite the star.

A new story of the west is always interesting. A Zane Grey story produced adequately on the screen is doubly so, and that is the reason why "When Romance Hides," an adaptation from Grey's great story, "Wildfire," is sure to meet with the enthusiastic approval of all patrons during the coming week and offering beginning with matinee Thursday. The picture story is a thriller interspersed with lively comedy. The great horse race along with giving spectators money's worth, but not satisfied with that the producer has staged for the film one of the most desperate struggles between a girl and man ever screened. Claire Adams, Ted Sloan, the Jockey, and others are featured in the cast.

A new photoplay by Basil King, "The Dust Flower," in which Helene Chadwick is starred, is a story of everyday people and contains the underlying appeal of the tremendously successful "Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse," has been pictured by Paramount and will open a week's engagement at the Merrimack Square theatre in this city Monday afternoon.

During the past week this big production has played in capacity crowds at Loew's State Theatre in Boston at top-notch prices. There will be no increase in the usual Merrimack Square scale of admission prices.

MARRIAGE A LA MODE
In Sweden the bride's bouquet does not indicate the prosperity of the groom, as it does here, but rather her own popularity among her girlhood
friends, for it is composed of a floral offering from each one.
The flowers are brought by the guests and are all bunched together,
regardless of color or size, and the color scheme of the occasion.

COPPER EFFECTS
Silver, bronze and copper effects in laces and beads are used extensively on the newest hat models. As the season advances the more lustrous metal cloths are supplanting the very brilliant gold and silver ones.

MANY SLIPS
This season many tunics are being made for one foundation slip, giving the effect of many frocks. Black satin, or gold and silver metal cloth are most satisfactory as foundations for they give an opportunity for greater variety.

REAL ESTATE TRANSACTIONS—BUILDING NOTES

THE GREAT AMERICAN HOME

WE HAVE SCRAPPED SHIPS UNDER TREATY NOT YET RATIFIED

Japan Marks Time—France Awaits Reparation Events—We Have Done Most of the Ship Scrapping—The Result Thus Far—Nine Months Have Passed Since Conference

(Special to The Sun)
WASHINGTON, D. C., Sept. 9.—It is nine months, and more, since the limitation of armament conference ended in Washington after a strenuous three months' session attended by representatives from all the major nations of the world.

What is the situation today, regarding the ratification of the treaties then agreed to by delegates from the nations taking part in the conference?

To the great credit of the United States, it was that nation that set the pace in accepting the work of the conference, and Great Britain and Japan came next in line. Those three nations have ratified all the treaties and agreements. China and Japan have ratified the Shantung treaty. The five power naval treaty of limitation of armament has been ratified by the United States, Great Britain and Japan. France and Italy still holding back. France is the only country involved that has not ratified the four power Pacific treaty nor has France yet entered into the five power far east treaty.

It is the expectation of officials in a position to forecast, that eventually all the treaties will be ratified, some nations waiting for the exchange of all necessary diplomatic formalities.

Italy charges France to be the cause of her delay in ratification. Italy says she is waiting for France to act first, especially in regard to the limitation of armament treaty. Italy says she is ready to accept that treaty, but must first know if France will do so.

France Awaits Events

France says she has been so occupied with the matter of German reparations, that she has not had time to take up the treaties. But in spite of that assertion, reports coming from France say the mind of all France is concentrated on the ratification of the treaties. Persons attending the plenary session have not forgotten how Britain, representing France, always insisted on knowing "how" will that affect France's interests before entering into any discussion of the situation.

"France" seemed to occupy all the space in Britain's mind, and while President Harding, Secretary Hughes, and the American delegates spoke and argued for the peace, prosperity and welfare of the whole world, Britain spoke for his beloved France. And now it seems to be France, that is delaying the ratification of those treaties by Italy, even though it is not thought for a moment that France will ultimately refuse to ratify.

The delay of action by France has caused much comment here. It is generally thought, however, that even if the unexpected happened, and France should refuse to enter into the several agreements, the treaty covering naval armament would still be effective, and the United States, Great Britain and Japan hold to it, with the possibility of Italy joining their ranks, and thus putting the odium of refusal entirely on the shoulders of France.

The United Scrapping Program

But whatever the outcome of the entire program, the conference at Washington had a splendid effect and has already resulted in financial benefit to the country, as well as exerting a strong moral influence against continued warfare. The U. S. government has curtailed its appropriations for the navy by many millions of dollars; it did this anticipating a ratification of the treaty by all nations involved and so has set a pace for confidence in the work done by the conference. It has reduced by thousands the personnel of the navy, it has provided for the scrapping of vessels no longer needed, although the actual scrapping, must, of course, wait on the ratification of the treaty by all nations. The same curtailment has been made by Great Britain and by Japan, so all that is now needed is that the two smaller countries of France and Italy fall into the line of humanity and economy.

Since the Washington conference, and the friendly attitude shown by Japan, one no longer hears rumors and whispers of threatened war between Japan and the United States. The black clouds of suspicion seem to have passed out of sight, and undoubtedly the pledges as to respecting the rights of each nation, had a beneficial effect on Japan and the sentiments indulged in by that country towards the United States.

The Present Status

Summed up briefly, the United States has fulfilled her part of the conference agreements; Great Britain and Japan have partially done the same; France and Italy have not yet acted. With the approaching reassembling of the French parliament, France will have the opportunity to make good, and her action would be quickly followed by Italy. The question today is will France act? If so President Harding will lose no time in clearing up the necessary diplomatic negotiations and will announce to the world the unqualified success of the first world conference on limitation of naval armament, which is the first step towards abolition of war.

Congressman John Jacob Rogers of Lowell was the first member of congress to urge that such a conference be called, and he introduced resolutions and spoke along that line some time in advance of action by the president.

RICHARDS.

PLAN IMPROVEMENTS

AT SHEDD PARK

Further improvements at Shedd park entrance, particularly along the Knapp avenue embankment, will be undertaken this fall in accordance with plans discussed last night at a meeting of the board of park commissioners. The side road from the main gate along the foot of Fort Hill park will be rebuilt, the first stretch of it to be completed before winter comes.

The first step toward a development of the land in Stevens street recently acquired for playground purposes is the disposition of a house thereon, to be sold at public auction.

The commission worked on a number of routine matters and approved monthly bills.

SCALLOPS

Wide and deep scallops are used effectively to trim coat frocks of Poret (silk) and tulle. They are bound with the material or with satin. They frequently finish the hem, panels or sleeves.

BEADED LINING

A stunning white crinoline coat has an unusual lining—pink satin beaded in gold beads. Gold embroidery also adds to the richness.

New Field for Women in Radio

MISS JESSIE E. KOEVING, ANNOUNCING

By NEA Service

NEWARK, N. J., Sept. 9.—The voice with a radio smile has made broadcasting station WOB, atop a department store here, one of the most popular in America.

It's the voice of Miss Jessie E. Koeving, the country's first woman broadcast announcer.

Radio fans as far away as Nebraska, Nova Scotia and Porto Rico have written in about it. Answering those letters keeps her busy—

And happy.

"It proves that woman can go man one better," she said as she prepared to start the program. "I had never seen a radio set until I came here one afternoon. I was to play a violin solo. While awaiting my turn I listened to the announcer. He was a man who, try as he did, couldn't get his voice to ring right."

"I was sure a woman could do better. I told the management about it—and got a chance to prove it."

Smile Wins

During the war Miss Koeving worked with a group of Y. M. C. A. entertainers. She watched the boys' faces as she played and realized and soon learned the knack of putting the smile into her voice.

"It was easy when I started broadcasting," she went on. "I just thought of the thousands who were listening—and just smiled."

Her success has opened a new field for women. For other broadcasting stations have replaced their men announcers with girls.

It was time for the program to start. Miss Koeving lifted to a cabinet on which stood a little instrument about five inches high, pressed a button and began announcing.

There was no bulky equipment to scare the speaker, no dangling wires to confuse her. The room was just like a simple music studio with piano, music stand, phonograph and heavy drapings.

The Microphone

Only the little device on the cabinet was exceptional.

"That Miss Koeving explained, in the microphone, the multiplicity of the broadcasting station. It magnifies sound and transforms it into electrical pulsations which are sent to the transmitting set on the roof."

"It is so delicate," she said, when she finished her talk, "that it even records the sound of footsteps."

She soon had to announce the next number—a violin solo by herself.

A press of a button to signal the operators above, a hasty shift of position, and Miss Koeving was standing before the microphone playing to her unseen audience. No applause greeted her effort. But a signal was flashed that she was wanted on the phone. A fan, many miles away, wanted her to repeat the number.

She acknowledged the request with a smile through the air.

Views of Samuel Reas on Future of American Railroads

SAMUEL REAS

from Europe sums up his views in a signed interview with NEA service.

BY SAMUEL REAS
In so fundamental an industry as transportation no question transcends in importance that of relations between the companies and their employees. And if my judgment is correct, the coming year will witness a decided trend toward the decentralization of machinery for settling disputed questions, and the adoption of the sounder methods of direct bargaining between companies and their working forces.

Our own road and its men have already taken the leadership in this question, and there has been successfully set up a workable—and working—plan of employee representation for the adjustment of controversial matters.

Unions will continue to exist, and they can do much good under wise leadership which appreciates financial and economic necessities. Direct bargaining between the separate managements and their own men, is generally speaking, the correct method.

Our employee representation plan on the Pennsylvania system is pure collective bargaining, and it is reasonable to believe that this method of voice adjustment, with more personal relations between management and working forces, will in time gain broader acceptance and use.

I do not anticipate government ownership of railroads in the United States because that would inevitably bring government operation, which means mismanagement and use for political purposes.

There is a growing recognition of the truth that railroad rate making is largely a commercial matter, and in order to be conducted on a sound basis must admit of some degree of initiative and negotiation. Consequently I rather anticipate some changes in this direction during the next few years.

If conditions are such that the necessary funds can be obtained from investors, there should be decided progress in the electrification of railways, at such points where the density of traffic will warrant the capital outlay.

The much-discussed motor truck will, I believe, become an important auxiliary of the railroad—supplementing rather than superseding it. The "wholesale" carriers designed for the heavy bulk service, especially over long distances. Motor transport, it would seem, is destined chiefly for the "retail" or local field.

Marvelous scientific progress has been made in air transport, but neither in the matter of carrying passengers or freight does it seem probable that this method of transportation will for many years seriously invade the field of land or water large-scale transport.

Broadly speaking, the great problem of the future will be to provide road and terminal facilities for the proper handling of the immense volume of traffic which we have every reason to anticipate.

By NEA Service
PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 9.—Samuel Reas, president of the Pennsylvania railroad, believes American railroads and other public utilities are about to enter an era of better fortunes and greater usefulness. These changes are coming he says: Direct bargaining between railroads and workers. New system of railroad rate making. Electrification where traffic density warrants. These changes are not coming, he says: Government ownership of railroads. Motor truck superseding railroads. Air transport supplanting land transport. President Reas, who has just returned

U. S. MARSHAL RESTRAINED FROM INTERFERING WITH MEETING

Temporary Injunction Granted Brotherhood of Electrical Workers—Move to Vacate Injunction So Far as It Applies to Jewell—Joliet R. R. Invites Shopmen to Return

WASHINGTON, Sept. 9.—A temporary injunction restraining United States Marshal Snyder from interfering with the meeting of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, one of the striking rail shop crafts and from doing anything to prevent strike activities "in excess" of the Chicago restraining order was issued today by Justice Bailey in the supreme court of the District of Columbia.

The court denied the petition for a similar injunction against United States Attorney Gordon, but without prejudice to a renewal of the application after next Monday when the Chicago order expires by its own terms.

Science Had Turned Despair Into Hope as Rescue Crews Resume Task

Instrument Records No Gasses Indicating Presence of Single Dead Body

JACKSON, Cal., Sept. 9.—(By the Associated Press)—Science, through one of its uncanny subtle instruments, had turned despair into hope when crews of diggers resumed today their hectic task of reaching the spot walled in by rock and debris and flame, where 47 workers in the Argonaut gold mine have been imprisoned for 12 days.

A delicate instrument, it was explained, had been lowered into the fiery and gaseous shaft through which the men had gone. It had recorded no gasses indicating the presence of a single dead body.

John Scott, secretary, was filed in United States district court here today.

The action was begun by Atty. Donald R. Richberg, on behalf of the railway employees' department, and was based on three general allegations: That the government had failed to make a case; that the relief asked and obtained on a temporary order was prohibited by the Clayton Anti-trust act and that the relief was sought with ulterior objects and under misrepresentations.

Croffoth, of San Diego, Cal. Jack Kearns, Dempsey's manager, and Jackaro both in Syracuse today. Upon their return, "Sunshine Jim" says, they will have a "chat" over the million dollar offer. Whether the bouts would be staged in Mexico City, London, Paris or New York, is an open question.

Coming Year Bids Fair to Be Epochal in Local Educational Circles

Largest Enrollment This Year in History of Lowell Public Schools

More Than 2300 Pupils Will Be Cared for in the New High School

The Lowell public schools will open Monday with the largest enrollment in history. This is not such an unusual statement as might be supposed, for each year the registration bulks larger than ever before, and this year simply is maintaining the ratio of increase.

ALL SET FOR THE STATE PRIMARY ELECTIONS

The board of election commissioners is ready in every particular for the state primary elections next Tuesday. Polls will be open from 11 a. m. to 3 p. m. and between these hours 31,680 registered voters will be entitled to cast a ballot.

The ballots themselves, bearing republican and democratic designations, arrived at city hall from Boston at 10 o'clock, this forenoon. Because of elections in representative and senatorial districts the same ballots are not possible for all wards (as much as the city's nine voting divisions go to make up three distinct representative districts).

The board of assessors today signed the 1922 commitment and the warrant directing the city treasurer and collector of taxes to levy and collect the amount of $1,194,683.72, which is the total levy.

Although the necessary books now are in the treasurer's office and his clerks are writing the tax bills, the actual date of commitment will not be for another week. This hitch in the proceedings was discovered today, when it was found that the street sprinkling assessment, amounting to upwards of $25,000 has not yet been passed by the city council. It was presented at the meeting on Thursday night of this week and ordered to remain in the city clerk's office for (Continued to page three)

MRS. HARDING, WHO IS CRITICALLY ILL, HAD "FAIRLY GOOD NIGHT"

Complications of Yesterday Were Less Threatening This Morning—Note of Optimism Sounded By Atty. Gen. Daugherty—Believes Patient's Pluck and Will Power Will Carry Her Safely Through Crisis

WASHINGTON, Sept. 9.—The condition of Mrs. Harding, wife of the president, critically ill at the White House, was reported at 9:30 a. m. today, to be "as favorable as can be expected at this time."

A bulletin issued by Brig. Gen. C. E. Sawyer, physician in attendance, said Mrs. Harding had a "fairly good night," and that complications of yesterday were "less threatening" this morning.

Dr. Sawyer's statement follows:

"Mrs. Harding had a fairly good night. The complications of yesterday are less threatening this morning. On the whole, her condition is as favorable as can be expected at this time."

Note of Optimism

Attorney General Daugherty, who remained throughout the night at the White House because of the critical condition of Mrs. Harding, wife of the president, said on leaving there early today that she had passed a more comfortable night than had been expected, and that he believed her pluck and will power would carry her safely through the crisis.

SWEETSER LEADS EVANS 3 UP AT END OF FIRST 18 HOLES

Metropolitan Titlist Shows Way to Veteran National Champion in Early Play—Evans Off in Approaching and Putting

THE COUNTRY CLUB, BROOKLINE, Sept. 9. (By the Associated Press).—A new head was pushing up in the gallery of golf champions today and an old one was being bowed when Jesso Sweetser, metropolitan titlist led "Chick" Evans, twice national champion, 3 up at the end of the first 18 holes of their final match at 36 holes for the national amateur championship. Sweetser was good today, but not as good as yesterday. Evans was off in approaching and putting.

Wonderful Progress by Sweetser
THE COUNTRY CLUB, BROOKLINE, Sept. 9.—Jesso Sweetser, the young New Yorker, met Chick Evans of Chicago today in the final match of the Country club course for the national amateur golf championship. It was Sweetser's debut in play for the amateur title, which Evans has held twice.

Sweetser, wearer of the colors of the Rivaney club of New York and the blue of Yale by virtue of his membership on the 1920 Eli golf team, is the first Metropolitan amateur to threaten the national crown within the last five years and the first finalist in seven years.

He captured the intercollegiate title in 1920 and the Metropolitan title this year. Failing to qualify in his first national attempt in 1919 and being eliminated in early round two years ago, he has made wonderful progress in the last year.

Evans is 12 years his opponent's senior and is a veteran of 12 years' tournament play. This year he dominated in remarkable fashion that he is far from the retiring age by clinching the western honors.

Sweetser gained much of his advantage through Evans' lack of judgment of distance. Evans' approach twice were almost dead to the pin, only to overrun into rough or traps. Other times they were short, and he floundered about, trying to get out. Sweetser was steadiness pronounced. In a trap at the fifth when Evans was three feet from the pin, playing the third shot each, the younger steadied his task, ploughed out with three feet of the hole and gained a half in fours when Chick rimmed the cup.

The Metropolitan champion was four up on the western list at the 15th hole after winning four out of five holes, the only break being a half at the 14th. Then he turned and Sweetser 1 up and Chick won the 10th with a birdie three when he holed from five feet and Sweetser missed a 10-foot putt.

This was one of three performances under par by Evans, flashes of the bell-laney for which he is noted. Birdies were brought to his room at the fourth, fifth and home holes, all three and the last was as pretty a piece of co-ordinated drive, approach and putt as the most ardent golf enthusiast could wish to

Adventures of the Twins

TINGALING ON TRAIL OF TWINS

"DID YOU SEE A LITTLE BOY AND GIRL?"

Flap-Doodle, the purple fairy, who had stolen the Fairy Queen's wand, had changed Nicky and Nick into white rabbits before he flew away.

The Fairy Queen, being sure that something was wrong, sent all her helpers to hunt for the lost twins.

Mr. Tingaling went first. He knew all the nooks and corners and grooves and crannies of Whispering Forest and Bright Meadowland and Old Orchard.

Kind, fat Tingaling, who, by the way, was the fairy landlord who collected all the rents from the wood folk, looked everywhere.

He looked up and down and sideways and crossways and under things and over things, in hollow logs, down hollow stumps—oh, just everywhere.

And he asked and asked and asked.

"Did you see a little boy and girl with golden hair and blue eyes anywhere about?" he asked old Mr. Mud

Turtle.

"No," said Mr. Mud Turtle. "Haven't seen any strangers around these parts

today but two white rabbits."

Mr. Tingaling asked Tittle Tond next.

"No, sir," replied Tittle. "The only new folks I saw around were two white rabbits. Must be relations of Cutie Cottontails."

And everybody Mr. Tingaling asked said the same thing.

"Well, I declare!" remarked Tingaling finally, fanning himself with his hat. "These must be important rabbits.

If they are strangers perhaps they have come a distance and have seen the Twins. I'll hunt them up and ask them."

The main entrance is on the left, and the side entrances are on the right. The building is surrounded by a fence and has a large sign on the front that reads "CUBA TOBACCO".

In the basement are the manual training room, gymnasium, shower locker, cooking laboratories, and lunch room. Rooms on this floor are numbered from 1 to 31. On the first floor are the main offices, the library and two study rooms for juniors, seniors and post-graduates. The numbering is from 101 to 131. Here also is the main entrance to the Auditorium. On the second floor are the typewriter, bookkeeping, and office practice rooms of the commercial department, the commercial geography room and the museum, and two study rooms for freshmen and sophomores and the entrance to the balcony of the Auditorium. Numbers 201 to 210. On the third floor are the mechanical drawing rooms, the chemical, physical, and clothing laboratories, the free-hand drawing room, the Frank J. Coburn hall, and the upper entrance to the balcony and the moving picture booth. Numbers 301 to 335.

School will begin at 8:15 and close at 1:15. Pupils not in their room at the stroke of 8:15 will be regarded as tardy and must go to the office in the old building, Room 101, for admission cards. There are six recitation periods, A, B, C, D, E, and F, grouped in pairs, and H, I, J, K, L, M, N, O, P, Q, R, S, T, U, V, W, X, Y, and Z. Between the recitation periods there will be three minutes to change classes. This time is sufficient for no loitering or conversation will be permitted and the pupils must pass to and from the classrooms without delay. After the second recitation period there will be a five minute relaxation when conversation under proper restraint will be permitted and pupils may go to the home rooms for books and material. Periods C and D will follow, similar to periods A and B. After the fourth period, comes a twenty-five minute recess for freshmen and sophomores on the third floor, while on the first and second floors seniors, juniors and sophomores have a study period. This condition is reversed for a subsequent twenty-five minute period.

At the close of the last period pupils will return to their home rooms to be dismissed. For the present one floor will be dismissed at a time, the boys on Kirk street and the girls on the park side. Miss Eaton, Miss Hogan and Miss Tobin will be ready in the main office to answer all questions and Miss Sawyer will be in the library.

SAYS HER NAME USED WITHOUT AUTHORITY.

Claiming and asserting that her name has been appended to political documents circulated in the interests of the campaign of George Stanley Harvey for district attorney without her knowledge or consent, Miss May B. Lavalley of 77 Gershom avenue, today soundly berated the act and branded it "contemptible politics."

Letters addressed to French speaking citizens of this city, particularly women and asking not only support for Mr. Harvey's candidacy "as a personal favor," but also urging solicitation among friends and leading Miss Lavalley's name as the sender, have been brought to her attention.

"My name has been used without authority or my consent," said Miss Lavalley, "and when a woman visited me and asked permission to use my name in such a manner I told her not to use it under any circumstances."

St. Louis' Parish Has Fine Rectory

The clergy of St. Louis' parish are now located in their new home, which was recently erected on a tract of land adjoining that of the church. The building is a handsome piece of architecture and reflects great credit upon the pastor, Rev. J. D. Laboulaye, who drew the plans, which were later approved by Architect Walter F. Fontaine of Woonsocket, R. I., who supervised the work.

The new rectory is what one might call a gift of the parishioners to the parish, for its construction was brought about through public subscription in a drive which was conducted through the parish a couple of years ago.

The building is 83 feet long by 42 feet wide, three stories high. It is of pressed brick with gravel roof and sets about fifty feet from the sidewalk. There are thirty rooms in the building including offices and suites for all the priests, kitchen, dining room, living room, parlor and reception hall. The first floor consists of a large parlor, living room, dining room and offices for the pastor and his three curators. In the rear of the building is an ell which is being occupied by the house maids. On the second floor there are four suites of rooms, which include bedroom, living room and bath.

seven days. While this actually will not delay the physical part of the work, it postpones the commitment date and does not allow the assessors to make their reports to the state until next Friday, instead of today.

The tables of aggregates, made up in connection with the detailed work, show that this year 23,217 dwelling houses were assessed, as well as 6252 acres of land. Also there were assessed 710 horses, 283 cows, 53 ewine and 1135 fowl. The number of persons assessed on property was 17,385 and on polls only, 30,965, making a total of 48,350.

The value of assessed personal estate was $31,317,718 and of real estate, $26,268,475, or a total of $57,586,193.

Of recent years it has been interesting to watch the decrease in the number of horses in the city. It still is decreasing and seems to be a slow process of extinction but the decrease this year from last year was only slight, the total dropping from 732 to 710.

Col. Gaston Himself Made a Declaration of His Democracy—Eloquent Tributes Paid Candidate—Mr. Vahey Assailed Riley, Curley and Whipple

Surpassing in interest and enthusiasm any similar rally in the history of the present senatorial campaign, Col. William A. Gaston, democratic candidate for United States senator, together with a formidable array of political speakers, addressed a capacity audience in Associate hall last night.

Charles S. O'Connor, former Boston school committee member and twice an aspirant for the mayoralty of Boston, followed Mr. Gaston with a vigorous and forceful address in which he stated that the United States is facing the most acute crisis in 75 years, and one that is fostered by the republican party under Henry Cabot Lodge.

been the fibre and fabric of the common people of the state and the democratic party might as well tear up its records and its history as to overlook the name of Gaston, which is written all over its pages. Mr. O'Connor went on to relate his very dear acquaintances with "that man of sainted memory," the late abolitionist William Lloyd Garrison, and the beloved Mr. O'Connell of South Boston, who could tell, perhaps better than anyone else, of the great and philanthropic work, the generosity to immigrants, the liberality and the loyalty of the Gastons of early Boston. Could we recall the name of A. A. Collins, William E. Russell, Tom O'Reilly, Thomas J. Gargan, they could speak eloquently of the achievements of the Gastons in the interests of the state of Massachusetts and "if you love the state, love the constitution, if you are loyal to yourself, if you are loyal to the rights of the people, then go to the polls next Tuesday with one thought, one line of battle, 'Whipple and defeat for Gaston and victory.'"

LIVELY BATTLES FOR OFFICES

District Attorney Fight Hot—test on Record in This County

Reilly a Strong Candidate All Over County—Reading and Harvey Excited

Chas. S. Bird Fears Defeat of Senator Lodge—Appeals For Harmony

The voters of Lowell and in fact those of the entire Middlesex district will have an important duty to perform in the selection of a candidate for district attorney at the primaries next Tuesday.

James C. Reilly of this city is a candidate for nomination in both parties. Being a democrat he will receive the nomination in his own party, but being also a candidate in the district attorney's office at the present time and having received a strong recommendation from Dist. Atty. Saltonstall, it is presumed that a large proportion of the republican party will take Mr. Saltonstall's word for the eminent Mr. Reilly.

Between Arthur K. Reading of Cambridge and George Stanley Harvey, the contest has been the bitterest waged for a generation. The voters are wondering what the effect of such tactics will be or whether it will cause them to cry to the top of both their houses.

Quarter Century Ago

The students of the Normal school will be interested to know that it opened its doors for the first time in October of 1897 as indicated by the following item from the Old Sun:

"The opening of the Normal school is awaited with interest, not only by the prospective pupils, but hundreds of people in this city, who look to the opening of the school as an important move in educational circles. Just at present, the question that interests the public most is the time of opening. Principal Coburn states the state board has arranged to open the school for students by October 1."

Frank F. Coburn was the first principal and after him came Cyrus W. Duncanson, who was succeeded by John J. Mahoney. Mr. Mahoney resigned to accept a professorship at Harvard and Mr. Clarence Weed, the present incumbent, was elected.

The state highway from Lowell to the sea is familiar to many residents of Lowell, but not so many are aware that it was started from Lowell to Lawrence, when the lines of the Lowell, Lawrence and Haverhill were laid. The following item from the old Sun refers to one of the first steps in constructing the state highway from Lowell to Lawrence:

"There was an important hearing at the courthouse yesterday on the proposed state highway through Dracut. It was an adjourned hearing, and when the county commissioners were ready to hear the question argued, there were but few people assembled in the room."

Silver Weddings

About this time quarter of a century ago there was quite a number of nuptial events. Among those mentioned in the Sun were the following:

A rose wedding took place yesterday (Sept. 8) morning at St. Michael's church, the contracting parties being Mr. Charles H. Burns and Miss Mary A. Riley. Rev. Fr. Scannell officiated and Mrs. Hugh Walker sang an Ave Maria at the altar.

Schiffel-McDermott

"It was an old fashioned rural wedding such as the English writers describe so picturesquely that occupied the attention of the Wigginsville residents last evening (Sept. 8), when Joseph Schiffel and Miss Helen McDermott, a popular young couple in the Wigginsville line, were united in marriage."

Markham-Honan

"A very pretty wedding was that of Mr. John Markham, a popular citizen of the Lowell mills, and Miss Catherine A. Honan, a charming daughter of old ward three. The marriage ceremony took place at St. Peter's parochial residence, Rev. Fr. Roman officiating the happy couple."

Ward-Bambrick

"Mr. Patrick S. Ward, of North Chelmsford, and Miss Rose A. Bambrick of this city were united in marriage at 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon (Sept. 8) at St. Patrick's parochial residence, Rev. Fr. Leonard officiating the ceremony."

Kinney-Edwards

"At the Episcopal church yesterday (Sept. 8) Mr. Lebaron W. Kinney of Scranton, Pa., and Miss Blanche F. Edwards, a popular school teacher at the Billings street school, were united in marriage by Rev. Thomas S. Sawyer. The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Ethel Edwards, as maid of honor. Miss Edith Abbott, Miss Florence Gilmore, Miss Annie Chase and Miss Pauline Moore were the bridesmaids."

Reid-Taylor

"A modest wedding took place at St. Anne's church at 6 o'clock (Sept. 8) when Miss Mary V. Taylor and Mr. William Reid were united in marriage by Rev. A. St. John Chambré. Miss Edith Johnson acted as bridesmaid and Mr. Robert Reid, a brother of the groom, was best man."

Harrington-Lynch

"A very pleasant wedding was that of Mr. P. Harrington, the well known grocer of Lewis street and Miss Mary Lynch, a popular young lady of Lewis street, which occurred at 3 o'clock (Sept. 8) at St. Patrick's parochial residence, and was performed by Rev. Fr. Burke."

FOR THOSE WHO HAVE THIN BLOOD

Many Symptoms Not Always
Associated With Anemia Disappear When Blood Is Built Up

The familiar symptoms of anemia, or thin blood, are poor appetite and loss of weight, and a sense of weakness often described as a tired feeling.

Other symptoms of anemia are loss of appetite, indigestion, sleeplessness, shortness of breath after slight effort and extreme nervousness. If unchecked, anemia causes loss of weight, vigor and ambition.

If you have any or all of these symptoms begin treatment now with a non-narcotic, pleasant, blood-building blood rich and plentiful, thereby giving the food that is needed by starved nerves. Every part of the body will respond to the treatment as was evident in the case of Mrs. Mary Scanlan, who lives at No. 166 Brooks street, East Boston, Mass.

"My trouble began shortly after the birth of my daughter," relates Mrs. Scanlan. "I was weak and just could not compel myself to keep going. I suffered from severe neuralgic headaches which seemed like hot, darting flashes across my head. My appetite was poor and when I forced myself to eat I suffered from indigestion. It seemed as though there was a weight on my stomach."

"I read about a case similar to mine being benefited by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills so I got a box. Within two weeks I was convinced that the pills were helping me. My appetite improved almost at once. Slowly I gained strength. My complexion improved and the headaches became less frequent and severe and finally disappeared entirely. I cannot say enough for Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for I know they are a good tonic."

Your own druggist can sell you a box containing two weeks' treatment with Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for 60 cents. If your blood is thin start this treatment today. Write to the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Schenectady, N. Y., for a booklet, "Building Up the Blood." It will cost you nothing—Adv.

League to Consider Asia Minor Situation

GENEVA, Sept. 9. (By the Associated Press.)—On the floor of the assembly of the League of Nations today before the opening a great deal of speculation was prevalent as to whether the league was not likely soon to have to undertake the protection of the minority population of Asia Minor, in view of the present military situation there. It was pointed out it was impossible for the league to impose any decision in this connection and that it would be necessary, in any event, for the powers to furnish whatever force was required. The league, however, stands ready to use its moral influence when the time comes, it was generally declared.

OLD TIMER.

WARE MILLS TO REOPEN MONDAY

WARE, Sept. 9.—George E. Tucker, agent for the Otis company mills, last night announced that the plant will be reopened Monday morning, September 11, with wages at the rate prevailing prior to February 13. The mills were closed on March 8 following a strike of 160 weavers and about 20 yard men. The shutdown threw approximately 1700 employees out of work.

The loss of wages during the closed period has been approximately $25,000 weekly.

On August 21 the mills were reopened, but after eight days of disorders and failure to obtain sufficient help, the gates were again closed.

Two wage cuts have been put into effect since last fall, the first 22 1/2 per cent and the last 20 per cent. The new wage rate will be 20 per cent in excess of that in effect when the mills were closed.

No notices have yet been posted, but the overseers have been instructed to communicate with the strikers and inform their families have left town since the strike.

58 THUS FAR INDICTED IN HERRIN MASSACRE

MARTIN, Ill., Sept. 9.—(By the Associated Press.)—The Herring massacre special grand jury last yesterday afternoon returned 14 bills which included one bill of 48 indictments for rioting and another bill of the same 48 men for conspiracy to kill. The jury then recessed until Monday morning, Sept. 18.

With four additional men in jail here yesterday charged with murder, Sheriff Melvin Thaxton and his special deputies were out searching for the rest of the 23 indicted yesterday. In the true bills returned in the grand jury's partial report on the Herring mine war.

With Otis Clark of Galesville, the first man indicted and arrested, the four new prisoners are Leon Mann, miner of Herring, Chas. Rogers, miner of Herring, Philip Fontanetta, miner of Martin, and James Brown, a negro deputy sheriff of Colp, a small mining settlement northwest of Herring.

The first indictment made known yesterday charged six men with the killing of Edward Hoffman of Huntington, Ind., one of the employees of the Lester strip mine, who escaped the massacre at the barbed wire in the woods, but who was overtaken and brought back to the cemetery, where five were shot down. Leon Mann is in this group.

Twenty-seven were made co-defendants in the third bill charging them with murder in connection with the death of John Shoemaker of Charleston, Ill. Rogers, Fontanetta and Brown are named in the bill.

Shoemaker was a son of Mayor Shoemaker of Charleston, Ill., and the father of three small children. He was a brother-in-law of W. J. Lester, owner of the ill-fated strip mine, and was acting as assistant superintendent at the time of the massacre.

More indictments will be issued, it is understood, for larceny and perjury. Following the massacre at the strip mine, much of the equipment was stolen and some of the stolen equipment has been recovered.

Indictments for perjury, it was said, will be based on the testimony of some witnesses given before the grand jury. United States Attorney General C. W. Middlekauff made known Thursday.

COULD NOT TURN IN BED

Operation Avoided by Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Dayton, Ohio.—"I had such pains that I had to be turned in bed every time I wished to move. They said an operation was necessary. My mother would keep saying: 'Why don't you take Pinkham's, Henrietta? And I said, 'Oh, mamma, it's no use. I've tried too much.' One day she said, 'Let me get you one bottle of each kind. You won't be out very much if I don't know if you will believe me or not, but I only took two bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and one of Lydia E. Pinkham's Blood Medicine when I began to get relief and I am regular ever since without a pain or a headache.'

REDUCTION IN FARE

The selection for the town of Billerica have been notified by Manager Thomas Lee of the Eastern Massachusetts Street Railway Co. that beginning next Monday and until further notice the cash fare between the North and South Villages will be 10 cents instead of 20 cents as heretofore. The new fare will apply only to those boarding or leaving the car in either direction between the points mentioned. The present cash or ticket fare and fare zones for passengers riding from or to any point between Lowell and North Billerica and Billerica Centre is unchanged. The change of rate was brought about through the efforts of the selection.

HOW U. S. COMPARES

America's position in aviation is far below other nations in a military way, but much higher commercially. Comparative figures in military aviation—air defense being gauged by the number of new machines—are given by Brig. Gen. William Mitchell, assistant chief of air service:

|               | In Service | Reserve | Building |
|---------------|------------|---------|----------|
| United States | 360        | ...     | 300      |
| Great Britain | 800        | 3000    | 1000     |
| France        | 2000       | 2000    | 2000     |

Mitchell adds that Italy has 600 machines now building, and Japan has 1000.

Commercial aviation figures just issued by the Aeronautical Chamber of Commerce of America are compared here with commercial records abroad:

|               | Flights | Mileage   | Passengers | Tons freight |
|---------------|---------|-----------|------------|--------------|
| United States | 130,736 | 2,907,245 | 122,512    | 62           |
| France        | 5,613   | 1,460,000 | 10,305     | 176          |
| Great Britain | 5,700   | 172,000   | 10,000     | 17           |
| Germany       | ...     | 1,033,700 | 6,820      | 34           |

BY MILTON BRONNER

LONDON, Sept. 9.—Supremacy in the air is the goal European nations are racing for. France stands easily first, with England a poor second, and Germany a great question mark.

British engineers are trying to offset French numerical superiority, while the best German military work now only inventing new devices but evading the restriction put upon their air future by the allies.

These developments are causing the most concern—especially to the French.

Germany's recent amazing strides in perfecting gliders which they claim may change the entire future of air history; while a German glider remained up more than two hours, the best the French could do was five minutes.

The reported manufacture in a neighboring country under German supervision of the powerful all-metal flying monoplane known as the Zeppelin-Staaken.

Stirred by her fears of possible German aggression in the future and determined to preserve her military domination on that continent, France has in that best trained military air service in the world, Laurent Eynac, French air minister, claims his country stands first both in military and commercial aviation.

French aircraft factories, encouraged by the government, are turning out 150 machines a month. France has 126 squadrons of airplanes in her offensive and defensive forces and by the end of next year proposes to have 220 squadrons, or nearly 2000 ready for active duty. In addition there are 538 planes in civilian hands capable of being used for military purposes.

Commercial air travel is possible between Paris and London, Brussels, Strasbourg, Amsterdam, Prague, Warsaw, Vienna, Budapest, Lausanne.

Signs of war are: Deranged stomach, swollen upper lip, sour stomach, offensive breath, hard and full stomach with occasional gripings and pain, pale face of leaden tint, eyes heavy and dull, twitching eyelids, itching of the nose, short, dry cough, grating of the teeth, little red points sticking out on tongue, starting during sleep with troubled dreams, slow fever. If your child shows any of these symptoms, start giving Dr. Tru's Elixir at once. 40c—60c—$1.20—Adv.

ANOTHER CIVIL WAR

Strife Torn China Faces Another Reversal in Struggle for Democratic Expression

PEKING, Sept. 8.—(By the Associated Press.)—Strife torn China faces another reversal in its struggle for democratic expression. The country is on the verge of another change in government which threatens to give the militarists complete control, according to members of President Li Yuan-Hung's cabinet.

President Li fears that the militarists are preparing to embroil China in another civil war, with a view to preventing abolition of the Tschung system, a move to which the old state must demurely acquiescence before he accepted the presidency.

He now contends that unless civil authority dominates, the country will experience a back set of many years in its desire to become a progressive nation.

Military pressure is being exerted upon Peking both from the north, where Chang Tso-Lin, former bandit chief, and now military dictator of Manchuria, gains daily in military strength, and from the south, where Chen Chiang-ling's troops recently are giving evidence of lawlessness.

The failure of parliament to function is attributed in some quarters to the Chinese members who are adding in behalf of Sun Yat-sen, first president of China, and deposed leader of the southern China government. Dr. Sun, who has remained at Shanghai since his flight from Canton, is charged with instigating riots in parliament sessions.

The reported manufacture in a neighboring country under German supervision of the powerful all-metal flying monoplane known as the Zeppelin-Staaken.

"Hungry Hearts," Beatitude of the Screen

ROSE ROSANOVA HELEN FERGUSON ABE RUDIN

BY JAMES W. DEAN
NEW YORK, Sept. 6.—"Hungry Hearts" is a beatitude of the screen that preaches the gospel of beauty. Like "The Jack Knife Man" it possesses no dramatic punch, yet it holds the attention through the very intimate glimpses it gives into the lives of its characters.

As the film unfolds its story you come to believe that you are actually peeping into the hearts and impulses of the immigrant family that came from Russia in the quest of beauty. You come to understand why the tenement immigrant counts his pennies and labors long hours—not to become wealthy so much as to be able to acquire the beautiful things of life, to satisfy the longing of a heart from which beauty has been shut off by poverty and oppression.

You come to understand that there is oppression in America, too, and those that weigh down upon the new immigrant often were immigrants themselves.

There is a deep sincerity in this picture. It could not be otherwise, for "Hungry Hearts" was written by Anzia Yezierska, herself an immigrant Russian who labored in a sweatshop and worked at menial tasks to gain an entrance into the life of the beautiful things of life. Only a few years ago she was refused a job as scullery maid in a New York hotel because of her appearance.

Anzia Yezierska knows her people better than Fannie Hurst knows them because she was herself one of them. E. Mason Hoyer has told her story on the screen with rare fidelity. "Hungry Hearts" is not so dramatic as "Humoresque" but it is a higher form of photographic expression than the latter's first picture.

Rose Rosanova has the mother role in "Hungry Hearts." She is a different type than Vera Gordon who became famous for her role in "Humoresque." Mrs. Rosanova's picture does not give her such a sympathetic role as was Miss Gordon's, but if you were to visit the ghetto of any large city you would see more women like that presented by the former than that presented by the latter. Her past few pictures have proven Mrs. Rosanova one of the really big character actresses of the day.

No fault will be found with the acting of Abe Rudin, who plays the part of a butcher in "Hungry Hearts." He was working as a butcher when the casting director employed him for the movie. He made enough in that part to buy a small store for himself.

Helen Ferguson, who is remarkably like Helen Daniels, also does good work in "Hungry Hearts." She was willing to look the part of a greenhorn, not relying entirely on her make-up to create the character.

James A. Fitzpatrick, who is filming the "Great English Authors," can't decide whether to include John Milton in the list. That, because the abstract quality is emphasized in Milton's works, while the dramatic quality is rare.

It seems that if a painting can be utilized as the theme of a motion picture, a standstill action could be found in a poem for a picture. The picture of Milton's idea of paradise and hell would be at least more interesting than some of our so-called dramatic pictures.

N. P. KEITH'S THEATRE

Grace Hayes, noted young singing actress, announced as next week's headliner.

For the first Sunday program at the D. F. Keith theatre a bill of more than usual excellence will be given. It will mark the Sunday performances of the season. Tom Brown's Melody Land will be one of the big acts, and Maude Powers and Vernon Wallace, in their formidable Southern idyll, will also be there. Then there will be Lynn, Dillson & Co. in "The Awkward Age," Claire O'Donnell and Eddie Black and R. W. Snow and Narine Bertram and complete the program.

For this coming week at the theatre Grace Hayes will be the top attraction. It is said of her that she can stand still, do nothing and attract attention. That elusive something which for want of a better name we call "personality" is the thing which this wholly charming singing actress possesses. And she has it in good measure. Of course she doesn't stand still. Nothing of the sort. She does things and does them in a manner which will evoke the heartiest of applause. She has some 100 or 120 per cent. value to them, but the one scheduled for presentation beginning next Monday afternoon, has even more.

Heading the list of special features is Maude Powers in her new and startling photograph, "Fascination." Enough said. The mere name Maude Powers is indicative of a very best as well as the most daring that the screen has to offer. On the same bill for the first three days of the week is Raymond Hatton fully fascinating. Besides being an elaborate and highly artistic screen creation, it has all of the other elements that go into making a truly praiseworthy photoplay. There is first of all a story that is both interesting and good love romance and action effects that dazzle.

Raymond Hatton and Virginia Valli are starred in the new Goldwyn play, "His Back Against the Wall." It tells the story of a coward whom force of circumstances has transformed into a hero. Against his will the swiftest coward has unknowingly "shot up" a bully of the town. How he lives up to the reputation, the indignities made, and the humor of his ordeal is admirably shown by Hatton. Miss Valli also scores well in the part opposite the star.

A Zane Grey story of the west is always interesting. A Zane Grey story produced adequately on the screen is doubly so, and that's the reason why "When Romance Rides," an adaptation from Grey's great story, "Wildfire," is sure to meet with the enthusiastic approval of all moviegoers during the coming week-end offering, beginning with matinee Thursday. The picture story is a thriller interspersed with lively comedy. The great horse race alone will give spectators their money's worth, but not satisfied with that the producer has staged for the film one of the most dramatic struggles between a girl and man ever screened. Claire Adams, Ted Sloan, the jockey, and others are featured in the cast.

A new photoplay by Basil King, "The Dust Flower" in which Helene Chadwick is starred, is a story of everyday people against the background of the most dramatic of all—the universal appeal that Mr. King knows how to get into his stories. There is some magnificent photography in the film and the most dramatic of all—the universal appeal that Mr. King knows how to get into his stories. ## REPUBLICAN FIGHTS

Not since the days of Mark Hanna and the torchlight parade has there been a political campaign in this state waged with such fervor and strenuousness as has been that which will close with the polls in the primaries next Tuesday.

The fight for the nomination for governor between the present incumbent and Attorney General Allen has been spectacular in many respects, with the governor in control of the situation so far as can be judged by a democrat viewing the pyrotechnics from below the brentwaters. Allen wants an opportunity to clean out the scheming politicians who have camped at the state house and are corrupting the source of government. The charge is amusing surely and it would seem that if any such den of corruptionists existed, and the attorney general should have used his authority to clean them out. If Governor Cox permits such conditions, he should be defeated and if Attorney General Allen has neglected his duty to enter politics, then he also should be relieved.

It seems, therefore, that we should have a change of governor and also an attorney general who as such will do his duty rather than coming to the front and telling the people that he will not move against the political crooks unless he is elected governor.

There is another rift in the republican ranks in reference to the choice of United States senators. Mr. Lodge is opposed by Hon. Joseph Walker, who voices the opinion of many republicans in stating that Senator Lodge cannot be elected if any capable democrat be nominated against him. Even the national leaders of the republican party, realizing the revolution of feeling against their do-nothing policy, have expressed grave fears lest Sen. Lodge be defeated for the nomination. They have in mind what happened recently to other veterans of the Old Guard and feel that Lodge will have to suffer for the future of the administration in which he has been the most prominent political leader but never a leader in constructive statesmanship.

He may get the nomination, but if the democrats pick the right candidate next Tuesday they will have an excellent opportunity to defeat Mr. Lodge at the polls in November.

Who is the chief animus of the opposition to Lodge? Not that he is a republican, but that he works for the rebuilding of his party rather than for the economic and industrial prosperity of the country. Never has the nation so sorely needed patriotic men of business capacity in the United States senate as at the present hour. The people realize the fact and have already set about the work of drafting new blood.

Mr. Lodge is a good American and patriotic, but during his 35 years in congress, 29 of which he has served in the senate, he has devoted his talents chiefly to politics and literature rather than to promoting the business interests of Massachusetts and New England. Had he devoted his brilliant talents to real statesmanship rather than to machine politics, he could have had any office in the gift of the American people, whereas now there is a demand for his retirement.

His endorsement of the outrageous tariff on scoured wool which we explained in these columns yesterday in one of the chief charges against him in the present campaign, apart from the general failure of the administration at Washington.

If Senator Lodge should be defeated the national leaders would foresee a general crash in which the whole republican temple would collapse like a house of cards and the party be driven from office just as soon as the constitution will permit.

VOTE RIGHT

Now that the campaign is drawing to a close the democrats of Lowell should select with extreme care the candidates for whom they are to vote at the primaries to be held next Tuesday. A vote cast for an unfit or incompetent candidate will stand on the side of inefficient government; and those who vote for such candidates are usually the ones most ready to complain if things go amiss when the new officials enter upon their duties and prove to be unable or to be so unscrupulous as to belittle their water for bribes and be guided only by the principles of "how much this is in it" in deciding upon public questions.

The question of good government comes down eventually to one of personal responsibility. Each voter is responsible for the use he makes of the franchise. We have here no kings or monarchs. The sovereignty rests with the people and the citizen who exercises his rights at the polls is thereby wielding a part of the sovereign power by which this nation is ruled. To prostitute that power and privilege to corrupt ends is treason to the country even though it be transacted behind closed doors away from public gaze and even free from suspicion.

The primary law is blamed for unsatisfactory results but too often it is the electorate, and not the law, that is at fault.

The man or woman who votes for the best men according to his or her judgment, votes right. It is important, however, to find out the real character and qualifications of every candidate before making a choice.

THE RAILROAD INJUNCTION

Much interest is manifested in the outcome of the hearing on the injunction obtained by the attorney-general against the railroad strikers. It will be held Monday and then the country will have an opportunity to learn the precise powers of the attorney-general under this drastic temporary injunction. The labor officials claim that the injunction in certain features of its scope is a violation of the Clayton act, the aim or purpose of which is to prevent so-called government by injunction. The whole controversy involves questions of constitutional law that only the highest court in the land can fully and finally determine.

Apart from the legal aspects of the injunction, it must be said that it has not, so far as can be judged, accomplished any good purpose. It may place certain union officials at a disadvantage and perhaps leave them liable for prosecution; but thus far there has been no move on the part of the government to restrain them in their public utterances or to prevent the strikers from holding meetings and carrying on in all respects same as before the injunction was issued. The purpose of the injunction, of course, was to prevent any interference with the operation of the railroads that would cripple the service or prove a source of danger to life and property. The strikers have repudiated the charge that they or any of their members have been guilty of any act of violence and in support of this claim they point to the fact that any violence against railroad trains would menace the lives of their brothers, the railroad trainmen.

SEASONAL SELLING BANNED

The time-honored system of "seasonal selling" of boots and shoes in the spring and fall is to be abandoned by most of the large shoe manufacturing establishments in Brockton. We understand that the important shoe industries of other large New England cities, will follow the Brockton idea, which has many good features demanding the condition of trade today and the innovations being rapidly made in the methods of producing and selling footwear.

Whether the radical departure from the custom of distribution just adopted by the shoe company controlled by former Governor William T. Douglas, will work out the way the Douglas people expect, remains to be seen.

A new retail reserve system is being arranged, to go into effect this month.

Under the new Brockton scheme, a reserve stock of a million dollars' worth of the latest styles will be held ready by the Douglas concern for instant shipment. The aim is to enable the retailers to turn their capital over quickly, thereby bracing up profits.

The reaction upon the company is expected to be continuous operation of its factories.

The "Brockton idea" is offered to shoe manufacturers in this section of the state for what it is worth. With this plan in operation, distributors will be enabled to buy constantly in small lots. If they desire, salesmen will be kept on the move, covering the trade, and a steady business is anticipated. The retailer, by being able to replenish readily, can afford to stock up lightly and accordingly can keep his investment down to the minimum of safety.

A FEMININE CAMPAIGNER

We are told that 4,000 farmers and their wives waited more than two hours in the hot midday sun several days ago out in Blue River, Wis., for Mrs. Ben Hooper, democratic candidate for senator from Wisconsin, to make her first campaign speech.

It was a non-partisan crowd and we read that the fair candidate, always "one of the best dressed" women in old Wisconsin, "refused to step up after her long train ride, and mounted the platform without a whisk of powder or a peep in a mirror."

The appearance of the democratic candidate, not at all spectacular but nevertheless proving a real drawing-card, is said to have elicited favorable comments from many in the Wisconsin throng, we read.

The speaker denounced the Fordney tariff bill as a "menace to the prosperity of our country," and retold the trouble that followed the passage of the Payne-Adams tariff bill, whose schedules were so high that it nearly wrecked the G.O.P.

Mrs. Hooper put it correctly when she declared that the 1922 republican high tariff makes the "Payne-Adams tariff look like free trade." She appears to be well informed on political conditions, party methods and future aims of both leading political organizations. Her campaign for the senatorship in Wisconsin will bear watching from now on.

CALM IN IRELAND

There is somewhat of a calm in Irish affairs at the present time and as the new parliament opens today, it is to be hoped that the present lull in the wild warfare and destruction by the irregulars will be abandoned and that the contending parties will find some basis of permanent peace. The events of the past several months will form one of the darkest chapters in the history of Ireland. When powerful invaders overran the country with fire and sword, the people themselves were not to blame, but they are to blame, or rather a few of the so-called leaders and responsible, for the recent trouble that has brought such disgrace and ignominy to the Irish people at home and abroad and that has caused them to lose the sympathy of the world, which was such a tower of strength in their movement for freedom during the past forty years. It is hoped that peace will wash down over the hills of Ireland and that the men who have been wrecking the land will regain their reason sufficiently to realize what they are doing to their native country.

LOSING SKILLED OPERATIVES

In the local mill strike the expected has happened, the mills of Lawrence having started up are now securing some of the most skilled help they can find in Lowell and thus the Lowell mills will be the losers eventually, even though they succeed in starving some of the strikers into submission. Agents from New Bedford have also been here in quest of skilled operatives and have succeeded, it is alleged in securing the number required. It is a serious blow to Lowell and her industries to lose so many skilled workers who could assist in promoting the prosperity of local factories and help to build up a bigger and more prosperous city. This struggle of endurance is foolish and should be abandoned.

TWO SPLENDID BUILDINGS

Lowell is on the eve of two great events in her history, one the opening of the new high school, and the other the dedication of the Memorial Auditorium. Both these buildings are a credit to the city and will prove a great source of educational and social uplift and civic pride for the generations to come. It may be that a great many of our citizens do not fully appreciate what it will mean to this and future generations to have two such magnificent buildings devoted to their education, political and social needs. It will be a great step forward for Lowell and her people.

RUSSIANS EXECUTED

The London Times "hears from Riga" that the Cheka, Bolshevik punitive secret society, executed 1,765,118 people before it went out of existence last February.

Do you believe it? The figure is improbably large, for it is doubtful if all Bolsheviks combined could muster enough work-spirit to bury that many political victims. Most news from Russia has to be discounted 50 per cent. Propagandists keep very busy, on both sides, otherwise they'd be out of jobs.

THE BONUS BILL

Now that the bonus bill goes to the president, there is great curiosity as to what his action will be in reference to this measure. If he keeps to his erstwhile attitude he will veto the bill and so far as appears from the vote in the senate, the supporters of the measure will not be able to muster enough votes to carry it over the presidential veto. To override the veto would be 64, but the vote on the bill was but 47 to 22, so that unless a number of senators who voted against the bill should change their attitude it cannot be carried over the veto.

ARTIFICIAL SILK

Do you wear silk? Or do you just think it is? The American output of artificial silk, mostly from the cellulose of wood pulp, now exceeds 15,000,000 pounds a year. It is a good product, wears like iron, if properly made.

The marvelous little invention, by which a machine duplicates the delicate work of the silkworm, may upset the whole economic system of Japan before many years. Everything in life is changing constantly these days.

GREECE

The whole civilized world must sympathize with Greece in the bitter defeat she has suffered at the hands of Turkey, with or without the aid of some other European powers. This is the time when Greece needs a statesman even more than a military genius to guide her destinies through this troublous period.

GEN. EDWARDS ACCEPTS

To Take Command of the Massachusetts National Guard

BOSTON, Sept. 9.—Gov. Cox late yesterday made public a letter from Maj. Gen. Clarence K. Edwards, commander of the First corps area and former leader of the First (Cavalry) division, accepting the executive's appointment as major general in the Massachusetts National Guard effective upon his retirement from the regular army later in the year.

"You request me to accept the commission of major general in the service of the commonwealth, upon my retirement from the regular army," the general wrote, "and to assume the command of the National Guard of Massachusetts, in order that it may be developed to the highest state of efficiency at the minimum of time and at a minimum of expense."

"For some time Mrs. Edwards and I have been looking forward to a real vacation upon my retirement and after 33 years of service with the colors, apparently the vacation must be postponed, for the people of Massachusetts have been and are to be far more than we can ever be to them, and a call to their service of the sort that you extend leaves me no alternative."

"I accept your tender, effective upon my retirement, later in the year, duly appreciative of the honor involved and ready to give the best that is in me to the new commonwealth until the task you have set me is complete."

In answering Gen. Edwards of his satisfaction in learning of the acceptance, Gov. Cox replied: "The citizens of Massachusetts will, I am sure, appreciate the fine spirit which Mrs. Edwards as well as yourself have shown in choosing your anticipated plans for a vacation and they may confidently count upon your leadership in developing the National Guard of Massachusetts."

Adj. Gen. Jesse F. Stevens had previously expressed the opinion that the regulations of the National Guard would not permit of Maj. Gen. Edwards being appointed to effect in the Massachusetts organization on account of age limitation.

SEEN AND HEARD

Nursing a grouch makes it grow.

All polished men don't shine.

This may be an awful country, but in Paris men wear ear-rings.

"Turks Take Back-Sheer"—headline. Some people drink anything.

What pleases the owner of an orchard like school opening?

To the straw hat, "So long, old top. See you next spring."

A Thought

I saw a delicate flower had grown up two feet high, between the horse's path and the wheel-track. An inch more to right or left had sealed its fate, or "it might have been so." It lived to flourish as much as it had a thousand acres of untrodden space around it, and never knew the danger of "it might have been so." It was a trouble, nor invite an evil fate by apprehending it.—Henry D. Thoreau.

Couldn't Take a Hint

The notorious bore was enthusiastic in praise of the busy lawyer from whose office he had just come, after a purely social call. "That fellow for a busy man," he declared earnestly, "is one of the pleasantest chaps I ever did meet. Why, I dropped in on him just to pass the time of day, and I hadn't been talking with him more than five minutes before he'd told me three times to come and see him again."

Nice to the Clergyman

The clergyman had called unexpectedly and Mrs. Smith had been there and while the visitor was talking for Mrs. Smith to return did his best to entertain him. "Well, Bobby, I hope you behaved nicely when the minister called?" she asked on his return. "O, yes, ma'am," he said, "I didn't say a word with him, so I slipped a whole pack into his pocket when he wasn't looking."

Today's Word

Today's word is—modicum. It's pronounced mod-i-kum, with accent on the first syllable. It means, a small quantity; a limited amount; or supply. It comes from Latin "modicus," moderate; more indirectly from "modus," a measure. It is used like this: "News that Lapine is again at the helm in Russia is received with a modicum of satisfaction in most quarters, not because he is considered, basically, any less loyal to the cause of the Allies than Bolsheviks, but because he is deemed more intelligent."

Enraged Gaffer

He was badly battered. He whacked and he smacked and he cracked and he cracked, but the ball would not come out. He had already taken 27 over, but he had not a lot of money and brasses and cloths and putters, but all to no avail. And he spoke a word, "Then with the light of day, in his eyes he took his club and smacked the ball out of a club and a piece of jagged rock. The caddy nodded approvingly. "Ay," he said, "that's the way to break one's clubs than lose one's temper."

His Besting Place

G. B. Burleigh, his "Memoirs" relates the following anecdote: A short time ago Stephen Leacock was the guest of a literary club to which he belonged and which he was called on to speak. I explained how that I had been walking in Highgate cemetery and paused by the tomb of Lord Stratford, one of the great literary custodians of the past. "Lord Stratford," he said, "is the only distinguished Canadian we have a little. But there's a very nice headstone beside his lordship." Whereupon I explained to him that curiously enough I was going to meet another distinguished Canadian, the Hon. J. H. Macdonald, and would try to induce him to make the necessary arrangements for occupying the vacant space by Lord Stratford's tomb. Leacock listened to this with strained attention. On rising for tea he disregarded the points made by the other speaker and said: "While I am deeply grateful to Mr. Burleigh for his thoughtful arrangements regarding my obsequies, I regret to inform him that they will have to be canceled, as I have already decided to be buried in Westminster Abbey."

Down Among the Wharves

Down among the wharves—that's the place I like to wander to. Smell of tar and salted fish and barrels soaked in brine! Here and there, a lobster-crab, and And in among them, mounding rats, an "old-salt" friend of mine. That old-salt friend of mine—how I love to talk together! Breathing in the wonder of his tales about the sea!

His face is tanned and wrinkled by the roughest kind of weather. And he is like a hero in a story-book to me!

Down among the wharves when a wind off north is blowing, Schooners rub and bump against the docks they lie beside. Half-way up the masts, the billowed sails are pulled for drying; Hawkers all are standing at the turning of the tide.

The turning of the tide! Time of fishing-storms and drifting from their docks across shipping; How our wharf re-echoes when their saucy tugs are screaming! How the great piles whiten with the tossing of their spray!

Down along the wharves among a wonderland of shipping—Rows of shining, gleaming masts that sway against the sky! Every day at flood of tide we watch some schooner sailing. On across the circling gulls, my old-salt friend and I—

My old-salt friend and I—he will drop the nets he's mending. Watch with me each flapping fin, each straining yard and spar; How we thrill together when the gulls are full and bending—We'll sit to wonder where the waiting vessels are!

THE MAN ABOUT TOWN

At last the houses on First street have been sold to prepare the way for the construction of additional parking space in that area. The proposed park will greatly improve the appearance of the locality, and as it is, at the very entrance to the city from the Lawrence boulevard, it should serve to create a very favorable impression in the minds of visitors who come to our city by that route for the first time. Lowell already has two beautiful "entrances" in Fort Hill and the boulevard, and with the addition of the Vermont park extension and the contemplated square to Main and the contemplated square to Main and the contemplated square to Main, the city should be well fortified with pleasing approaches. ## "Hungry Hearts," Beatitude of the Screen

ROSE ROSANOVA HELEN FERGUSON ABE BUDIN

BY JAMES W. DEAN
NEW YORK, Sept. 9.—"Hungry Hearts" is a beatitude of the screen that preaches the gospel of beauty. Like "The Jack Knife Man" it possesses no dramatic punch, yet it holds the attention through the very intimate glimpses it gives into the lives of its characters.

As the film unrolls its story you come to believe that you are actually peeping into the hearts and impulses of the immigrant family that came from Russia in the quest of beauty.

You come to understand why the tenement immigrant counts his pennies and labors long hours—not to become wealthy so much as to be able to acquire the beautiful things of life, to satisfy the longing of a heart from which beauty has been shut off by poverty and oppression.

You come to understand that there is oppression in America, too, and those that weigh down upon the now immigrant often were immigrants themselves.

There is a deep sincerity in this picture. It could not be otherwise, for Anzia Yezierska, herself an immigrant, Russian who labored in a sweatshop and worked at menial tasks to gain an education from which she could survey the beautiful things of life. Only a few years ago she was refused a job as secretary in a New York hotel because of her appearance.

Anzia Yezierska knows her people better than Fannie Hurst knows them because she herself one of them. E. Mason Hopper has told the story on the screen with rare fidelity. "Hungry Hearts" is not so dramatic as "Humoresque" but it is a higher form of cinematographic expression than the Fannie Hurst picture.

Rose Rosanova has the mother role in "Hungry Hearts." She is a different type than Vera Gordon who became famous for her role in "Humoresque." Mme. Rosanova's picture does not give her such a sympathetic role as was Miss Gordon's, but if you were to visit the ghetto of any large city you would see more women like that presented by the former than that presented by the latter. Her past few pictures have proven Mme. Rosanova one of the really big character actresses of the day.

No fault will be found with the acting of Abe Budin, who plays the part of a butcher in "Hungry Hearts." He was working as a butcher when the casting director employed him for the movie. He made enough in that part to buy a small store for himself.

Helen Ferguson, who is remarkably like Bebe Daniels, also does good work in "Hungry Hearts." She was willing to look the part of a greenhorn, not relying entirely on her make-up to create the character.

James A. Fitzpatrick, who is filming the "Great English Authors," can't decide whether to include John Milton in the list. That, because the picture quality is emphasized in Milton's works, while the dramatic quality is rare.

It seems that if a picture can be utilized as the theme of a motion picture enough action could be found in the life of Milton. The picture in a poem for the adult class. Milton and hell would be at least more interesting than some of our so-called dramatic pictures.

to see it, although the comedy isn't written in the vein of a sermon. Eddie Weber and Marion Ridnor are young and because they are young they can dance some of the old times to a standard. It wasn't so long ago that the but were touted as models and their work stands out as one of the brightest of spots of the budding full season.

John and Jones are blackface comedians, who show us the latest type of negro in his pained days. That means negro comedy, imitation negroes and a good deal of dancing. The autumn trip give whistling, mimicry and comedy in an artistic manner, and Zemat & Smith, the flying minstrels, do a triple horizontal bar performance which is thrilling and funny. W. D. Pollard is an uncommon juggler with some uncommon fun, but the one scheduled for the evening, Topics of the Day and Anson's Fables will complete the bill.

Always a Good Show at the

tully fascinating. Besides being an elaborate and highly artistic screen creation, it has all of the other elements that go in making a truly prize-winning photoplay. There is intelligent action to satisfy all suspense, a good love romance, and scenic effects that dazzle.

Raymond Hatton and Virginia Valli are starred in the new Goldwyn play, "His Back Against the Wall." It tells the story of a coward whom force of circumstances has transformed into a hero. Against his will the silver-tongued coward has unknowingly "shot up" a bully of the town. How he lives up to the reputation he has made and the humor of his ordeal is admirably shown by Hatton. Miss Valli also scores well in the part opposite.

Zano Grey story of the west is always interesting. A Zano Grey story produced adequately on the screen is doubly so, and that's the reason why "When Romance Rules," an adaptation from Grey's great story, "Wildfire," is sure to meet with the enthusiasm of the most desperate struggle between a girl and man ever screened. Claire Adams, Tod Sloan, the jockey, and others are featured in the cast.

A new photoplay by Basil King, "The Dust Flower," in which Helene Chadwick is starred, is a story of everyday people and contains the most gripping appeal that Mr. King knows how to get into his stories. There is some magnificent photography in the film. Picture patrons should not miss it for it is far from the beaten path in theme and treatment.

LIONEL BARRYMORE

"THE DEVIL'S GARDEN"

A big, spectacular 7-act feature.

"Blood and Sand" has many points of appeal to motion picture lovers of every type. Sensational to the limit in this great story of the life and loves of a young bull fighter, there are those scenes in which Mr. Valentino does sword and cane play before the audience of Spain. Mr. Valentino, the famous Spanish Matador, was well-versed in the graceful art.

"Blood and Sand" is a story of a bull fighter. It abounds in those colorful elements every American admires. Valentino's reputation as a lover and a lover's reputation as a lover is well sustained in his last picture. He is a real bull fighter, but equally alluring are his scenes with Lila Lee and Nita Naldi, respectively, one a quiet, demure type, the other a wild, exotic beauty. Mr. Valentino himself is colorful in a variety of costumes showing his rise from a poor Spanish boy to a place as a successful bull fighter and idol of all Andalusia.

The ambition of every Spanish boy is to become a bull fighter and Juan Gallardo is no exception. His sister, Mariquita, becomes engaged to Antonio, a squalid, who looks on Juan as a worthless scamp. When he is in his first bull fight, he is a real bull fighter, trying to stage bull fights. Juan kills his first bull and the event is marked by the tragic death of his friend, Chito.

Juan returns to Seville and is the hero of the hour. He manages to get his name on a poster announcing a bull fight. Contrary to expectation, he is in his family, he shows such daring that all Seville rings with his name. He enjoys great popularity and also does Antonio, who is working when Juan falls in love with his childhood playmate, Carmen. And great ra-proaching Juan's wedding takes place. Carmen and Juan are greatly devoted, although the former's happiness is marred by the anxiety she suffers when her husband goes to the arena.

Don Sol, piece of the Marquis de Moriana and widow of a diplomat, seen Juan in the arena and marks him for her own. She induces Don Jose, Juan's business manager, to bring him to her house where she makes violent love to him. He loses his head at her flattery, but tries to get away from her, by a series of clever ruses.

Remember, this big spectacular production of Sunny Spain will be shown all week at the Merrimack Square Theatre and there will be no advance in prices. Accompanying features will be Buster Keaton in his latest comedy, "My Wife's Relations," and the International News.

Sunday features will include Charles Ray in "The Old-Fashioned Boy," and Gladys Walton in "Short Skirts."

RIALTO THEATRE

The Rialto theatre's new policy of three shows a week at greatly reduced prices, which was adopted with the full opening of the theatre last Sunday has proven a popular movement with the moving picture followers of Lowell. Every afternoon and evening the theatre has been filled to capacity and satisfaction with both prices and pictures has been expressed on all sides.

For the coming week the same high standard of pictures will be maintained in the varied program of pictures. For Sunday there will be a complete change of program, which will have two feature pictures and two laughable comedies. Three other new shows will decorate the screen for the coming week.

The feature picture to be shown on Sunday will be James Oliver Curwood's great northern story, "God's Country and the Law." It is a story of the great north woods, attractive in the language of the well known author and depicting the northern woods faithfully. The comedy pictures will be "Let Katy Do It" and "The Love Egg," with two comedies, "The Love Egg" and "Henpecked." It will be a most attractive program.

MARRIAGE A LA MODE

In Sweden the bride's bouquet does
not indicate the prosperity of the groom, as it does here, but rather her
own popularity among her girlhood
friends, for it is composed of a floral
offering from each one.
The flowers are brought by the
guests and are all bunched together,
regardless of color or size, and the
color scheme of the occasion.

COPPER EFFECTS

Silver, bronze and copper effects in laces and beads are used extensively
on the newest hat models. As the season advances the more tarnished metal clothes are supplanting the very brilliant gold and silver ones.

MANY SHIPS

This season many tunics are being made for one foundation slip, giving
the effect of many frocks. Black satin, or gold and silver metal cloth are
most satisfactory as foundations for they give an opportunity for greater variety.

New Field for Women in Radio

MISS JESSIE E. KOEBLING, ANNOUNCING

By NKA Service

NEWARK, N. J., Sept. 8.—The voice with a radio smile has made broadcasting station WOR, atop a department store here, one of the most popular in America.

It's the voice of Miss Jessie E. Koebling, the country's first woman broadcast announcer.

Radio fans as far away as Nebraska, Nova Scotia and Porto Rico have written in about it. Answering these letters keeps her busy.

"It proves that woman can go man one better," she said as she prepared to start the program. "I had never seen a radio set until I came here one afternoon. I was to play a violin solo. While awaiting my turn I listened to the announcer. He was a man who, try as he did, couldn't get his voice to ring right."

"I was sure a woman could do better. I told the management about it and gave a chance to prove it."

Smile Wins

During the war Miss Koebling worked with a group of Y. M. C. A. entertainers. She watched the boys' faces as she played and recited and soon learned the knack of putting the smile into her voice.

"It was easy when I started broadcasting," she went on. "I just thought of the thousands who were listening—and just smiled."

Her success has opened a new field for women. For other broadcasting stations have replaced their men announcers with girls.

It was time for the program to start. Miss Koebling tipped to a cabinet on which stood a little instrument about five inches high, pressed a button and began announcing.

"There was no bulky equipment to scare the speaker, no dangling wires to confuse her. The room was just like a simple music study with piano, music stand, phonograph and heavy drapings."

The Microphone

Only the little device on the cabinet was exceptional.

That Miss Koebling explained, in the microphone, the multitude of the broadcasting station. It magnified sound and transformed it into electrical pulsations which are sent to the transmitting set on the roof.

"It is so delicate," she said, when she finished her talk, "that it even records the sound of footsteps."

She soon had to announce the next number—a violin solo by herself.

A press of a button to signal the operators above, a hasty shift of position, and Miss Koebling was standing before the microphone playing to her unseen audience. No applause greeted her effort. But a signal was flashed that she was wanted on the phone. A fan, many miles away, wanted her to repeat the number. She acknowledged the request with a smile through the air.

WE HAVE SCRAPPED SHIPS UNDER TREATY NOT YET RATIFIED

Japan Marks Time—France Awaits Reparation Events—We Have Done Most of the Ship Scrapping—The Result Thus Far—Nine Months Have Passed Since Conference

(Special to The Sun)

WASHINGTON, D. C., Sept. 9.—It is nine months, and more, since the limitation of armament conference ended in Washington after a strenuous three months' session attended by representatives from all the major nations of the world.

What is the situation today, regarding the ratification of the treaties then agreed to by delegates from the nations taking part in the conference?

To the great credit of the United States, it was that nation that set the pace in accepting the work of the conference, and Great Britain and Japan came next in line. Those three nations have ratified all the treaties and agreements. China and Japan have ratified the Shantung treaty. The five power naval treaty of limitation of armament has been ratified by the United States, Great Britain and Japan. France is the only country involved that has not ratified the four power Pacific treaty; nor has France yet entered into the five power far east treaty.

It is the expectation of officials in a position to forecast, that eventually all the treaties will be ratified, some nations waiting for future convening of all necessary diplomatic formalities. Following a complete ratification, there would probably be another meeting in Washington of representatives from all nations and the president of the United States, announcing the exchange of all necessary diplomatic formalities.

Italy charges France to be the cause of her delay in ratification. Italy says she is waiting for France to ratify first, especially in regard to the limitation of naval armament treaty.

France awaits events.

France says she has been so occupied with the matter of German reparations that she has not had time to take up the treaties. But in spite of that assertion, reports coming from France say the mind of all France is considering the acts of the Washington conference. Persons attending the plenary session have not forgotten how Briand, representing France, always insisted on knowing "how will that affect France's interests" before entering into any discussion of the situation. Briand seemed to occupy all the space in Briand's mind, and while President Harding, Secretary Hughes, and the American delegates spoke and argued for the peace, prosperity and welfare of the whole world, Briand spoke for his beloved France. And now it seems to be France, that is delaying the ratification of those treaties by Italy, even though it is not thought for a moment that France will ultimately refuse to ratify.

The delay of action by France has caused much comment here. It is generally thought, however, that even if the unexpected happened, and France should refuse to enter into the several agreements, the treaty governing naval armament would still be effective; and the United States, Great Britain and Japan hold to it, with the possibility of Italy joining their ranks, and thus putting the odium of refusal entirely on the shoulders of France.

The United Scrapping Program

But whatever the outcome of the entire program, the conference at Washington had a splendid effect and has already resulted in financial benefit to the country, as well as exerting a strong moral influence against continued warfare. The U. S. government has curtailed its appropriations for the navy by many millions of dollars, it did this anticipating a ratification of the treaty by all nations involved and so has set a pace for confidence in the work done by the conference. It has reduced by thousands the personnel of the navy. It has provided for the scrap-heap of vessels no longer needed, although the actual scrapping, must, of course, wait on the ratification of the treaty by all nations. The same curtailment has been made by Great Britain and by Japan, so all that is now needed is that the two smaller countries of France and Italy fall into the line of humanity and economy.

Since the Washington conference, and the friendly attitude shown by Japan, one no longer hears rumors and whispers of threatened war between Japan and the United States. The black clouds of suspicion seem to have passed out of sight, and undoubtedly the pledges as to respecting the rights of each nation, had a beneficial effect on Japan and the sentiments induced in by that country towards the United States.

The Present Status

Summed up briefly, the United States has fulfilled her part of the conference agreements; Great Britain and Japan have partially done the same; France and Italy have not yet acted. With the approaching centennial of the French parliament, France will have the opportunity to make good, and her action would be quickly followed by Italy. The question today is will France act? If so President Harding will have no time in clearing up the necessary diplomatic negotiations and will announce to the world the unequalled success of the first world conference on limitation of naval armament, which is the first step towards abolition of war.

Congressman John Jacob Rogers of Lowell, was the first member of congress to urge that such a conference be called, and he introduced resolutions and spoke along that line some time in advance of action by the president.

PLAN IMPROVEMENTS AT SHEDD PARK

Further improvements at Shedd park entrance, particularly along the Knapp avenue embankment, will be undertaken this fall in accordance with plans discussed last night at a meeting of the board of park commissioners. The site road from the avenue gate along the foot of Fort Hill park will be rebuilt, the first stretch of it to be completed before winter comes.

The first step toward a development of the land in Stevens street recently acquired for playground purposes is the disposition of a house thereon, to be sold at public auction.

The commission worked on a number of routine matters and approved monthly bills.

DEDICATORY EXERCISES

Legion Post Members Apply for Admission Tickets to Auditorium Dedication

Final applications by members of Lowell Post 57 of the American Legion for admission tickets to the dedicatory exercises of the Lowell Memorial Auditorium, which will be held on Thursday, Sept. 21, were received at a special meeting of the post held last night in Memorial hall. Commander Fred Bates, a member of the board of trustees of the Auditorium, discussed various plans regarding the dedication.

Notification was received that the recommendation of the post concerning the trouping of the colors and other memorial exercises were accepted and will be included in the program for the day.

Plans were made for the flag raising, in which the Legion will participate, and this will take place at noon on the day of dedication. At this time the national colors will be raised on one pole and the state flag on the other. Representatives of the G. A. R., the Spanish War Veterans, and the American Legion will officiate at these exercises. A squad from the Legion will be dressed in full war-time regalia for this event. On Sept. 12 a dress rehearsal will be held in the Auditorium and all those intending to participate are asked to attend the rehearsal.

Prior to the dedication the Legion will hold a banquet in Memorial hall and the post has invited as guests, Miss Gen. Clarence R. Edwards, Mayor George H. Brown, State Commander William Doyle of Malden, and retiring Commander Charles N. Cole.

A communication from Custodian Col. Mackenzie was received last night meeting to the effect that the Legion's quarters in the new building will soon be ready for inspection. They comprise the whole third floor of the veterans' wing and include a spacious meeting hall, a committee room and a kitchen.

A communication from New Bedford was also sent asking for information of Luigi St. Marie, who was discharged from the army and gave his address as 14 Dodge street, Lowell. Anyone having information of this man is asked to get in touch with Adjutant Robert Rutledge of Lowell post at Room 205, Bradley building.

UNIVERSITY EXTENSION

CLASSES POPULAR

The University Extension classes of the Sacred Heart parish, conducted under the personal supervision of Rev. William Mahan, O.M.I., will enter upon its fifth year with the completion of classes next Monday evening. The course has proved extremely popular in the past as indicated by the attendance record which compares favorably with any similar school in the state.

It was two years ago that the first class began with an enrollment of forty-two pupils. The first year was devoted to mathematics and the forty-two members finished the course and continued through to geometry. Business English was added to the course the next year and an increased attendance was in evidence. During the last term a class in elementary accounting was formed and on next Monday evening a course in stenography will be begun. Together with French, household management and dietetics, bookkeeping will also form a part of the extended course.

All those wishing to enter these classes should apply for admission in the hall of the Sacred Heart school Monday evening at 8 o'clock.

STRIKERS CONTINUE TO LEAVE LOWELL

Sixteen local textile strikers left last night for New Bedford, where they have secured employment in cotton mills. The men and women went away yesterday in order to secure accommodations before beginning work on Monday morning. It is reported that many others were hired by Lawrence mill officials and that they will leave for the downriver city tomorrow.

That the loomfixers employed at the Hamilton mills as strikebreakers will strike Monday because their demand for an increase in wages was thrown down, is the report given out at strike headquarters this morning. According to strike leaders the men have sent a committee to the superintendent of the mill with a request that they be granted a wage increase, and they also informed the official that unless their demand was granted, they would not report for work next Monday morning.

When interrogated today, Agent Miliken denied any knowledge of the contemplated strike on Monday and further stated that as far as he knows there has been no demand for a wage increase from the loomfixers or any other class of workers in his mill. Mr. Miliken also stated that a part of the finishing department of the mill was closed this morning, this action being taken in an endeavor to balance up the work.

LOOKING FOR OVER

The budget and audit commission went to city hall this afternoon to approve the August departmental bill, or at least, to look them over, for it is fair to assume that all will not be adorned with their approval stamp. A Saturday meeting was necessary so as to allow for payment on the 15th of the month.

One of the prettiest weddings of the season took place this morning when Miss Helen Madeline Sullivan, a popular young teacher of the Vernum grammar school and Mr. John L. Keyes, state bank examiner, were united in marriage at a nuptial mass in the chapel of the Immaculate Conception rectory, the officiating clergyman being the Very Rev. Lawrence F. Tighe, O.M.I. Bro. Neil Sullivan, O.M.I., a brother of the bride, served as acolyte at the services, and the following specially arranged musical program was rendered: Solo, "Sweet Love," Miss Ruth Boulger; "O Salutaris," Alice Dancy and Ruth Boulger; "O Promise Me" and "Ave Maria," Miss Gertrude O'Brien, who also played Mendelssohn's wedding march. The bride was strikingly gowned in white, and carried a bouquet of white roses and a veil caught up with orange blossoms and carried a bridal bouquet of lilies of the valley, white roses and orchids. The bridesmaid, Miss Agnes Liston, wore a dress of peach-bloom canton crepe with picture hat to match and carried a bouquet of orchids. The best man was Mr. Joseph P. Keyes, a brother of the bridegroom. Following the ceremony a reception and wedding breakfast was served at the home of the bride's parents, No. 250 Rogers street, where were present many of the town guests. The ushers at the house and church were Paul, Arthur and Andrew Sullivan, all brothers of the bride. After an extended honeymoon trip, the couple will be at home to their friends at 11 Woodward avenue, after November 1.

Spence—Sullivan
The marriage of Mr. George Spence, the well known football player, who at one time was connected with the Indian football team, and Miss Helen Sullivan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Sullivan of 23 Dracont street, took place Sept. 3, the ceremony being performed at St. Columba's church by the pastor, Rev. P. J. Hally. The bride wore brown and carried a bouquet of white roses and carried a veil caught up with orange blossoms and carried a bridal bouquet of lilies of the valley, white roses and orchids. The bridesmaid, Miss Agnes Liston, wore a dress of peach-bloom canton crepe with picture hat to match and carried a bouquet of orchids. The best man was Mr. Joseph P. Mr. Lazarus Pelland, advertising manager for Le Divoir of Montreal, and Miss Rose Aimee Masse of Joliette, Que., were married Sept. 4 at the bishop's palace in Joliette, the ceremony being performed by Rt. Rev. Bishop Forcier. The couple are now visiting in this city as the guests of Mrs. Melina Sauvage, 236 West Sixth street, and Rev. E. J. Vincent of St. Louis rectory.

CAR SHOP STRIKERS ARE OPTIMISTIC

There is a strong feeling at the headquarters of the Boston & Maine carshop strikers, that the conference to be held in Chicago on Monday, and which will be attended by a delegation from this city, will result in bringing about a quick settlement of the railroad strike throughout the country. The Lowell strikers are confident that the settlement will be prepared at the conference will be accepted by railroad officials, and that within a very short time all carshops will be open for business in this city. The Lowell delegates, whose names appeared in yesterday's Sun, left today and the strikers expected to hear about the middle of next week.

The strikers are now devoting their time to making arrangements for the benefit baseball game and dance, which will be held Monday evening. The ball game will be played on the South common and it is expected that the fans will be numerous, for the contest will be between the Highland Daylights and an all-star team. There will be no admission fee, of course, but during the game the strikers will be asked to donate liberally.

The dance will be conducted in the Lakeview dance hall through the courtesy of the owner, Harry C. Kittredge, of this city, who has given the use of the hall free of charge. The dance will be on the same principles as heretofore, that is dancing checks will be sold at the entrances. During the evening there will be exhibition dances by local and out-of-town artists.

LOWELL DISTRICT COURT

Man Charged With Non-Support of Family Has Money in Bank

The list of offenders in district court this morning was almost entirely composed of continued cases. The session was a short one as the court made quick disposition of the large number of law violators.

Having amassed a fortune of $5000 two years ago, James Stratos decided that he would not work any longer but would let his wife and children support him for the remainder of his days. Stratos, 40, was charged with non-support. As a result of this lordly decision he appeared in court this morning to answer the charge of non-support of his wife and family and the additional count of assault and battery. Upon the evidence offered Judge Wright found him guilty on both counts and sentenced him to six months in the House of Correction. He suspended the sentence for one year on the condition that the man would get out of the house and pay his wife $10 a week.

The man's daughter testified that he had assaulted her a few days ago and that she was unconscious for several hours as the result of the beating she had received. She said that he did the same thing many times in the past and that she was afraid of him. His wife told of the money her husband had in the bank and his refusal to give her any money toward the support of the family and herself. She said that it was necessary for her and her children to go to work in order to obtain enough funds to live on.

The man, in his own defence, said that he had money in the bank and had decided not to work. He also said that he always gave plenty of money to his wife.

Joseph Berube, charged with assault and battery on Lydia Evans and Ethel Lindsey in Billerica, on August 1, retraced his former plea to not guilty. The evidence in this case has been heard at a previous trial at which the wrong man was arraigned as defendant. The case was continued to September 11 for sentence. In the meantime, the defendant will make full restitution to the young women and pay the costs of court.
